

GERMAN TORPEDO BOATS IN FIGHT IN BALTIC SEA

GERMANS REPULSED IN ATTACK

Belgian Army Holds On North.

ALLIES ATTEMPT TO TAKE LILLIE

Situation in East Shows Very Little Change.

Paris, Oct. 21.—The French official communication says that the Germans during the day made attacks along the entire front and everywhere were repulsed. The text follows:

"The day has been characterized by an effort on the part of the Germans along all parts of the front—to the extreme north, where the Belgian army has held remarkably; at La Basses, where the German troops have attempted an offensive movement of particular violence; to the north of Arras, at Mametz, between Peronne and Albert; at Vauquois, to the east of the Argonne, and finally on the heights of the Meuse and in the region of Champlon.

"Everywhere the German attacks have been repulsed."

Belgian Army Holds Stubbornly.

London, Oct. 21.—Fighting of the most desperate character is in progress in West Flanders and northwestern France. The Belgian army, supported by the allies, is holding stubbornly to the line of the river Yser and thus far has halted successfully determined efforts of the Germans to advance along the coast.

This is announced in the French official communication and is admitted in the report of German general headquarters, which says fighting has been going on since Sunday in the vicinity of Nieuport, which stands at the crossing of the river near the sea.

A little further to the south the allies are attempting to advance toward Lille for the relief of that city, which has been in German hands for some time. They also are pushing on to the north and south of Arras. Their efforts to advance on Lille, where the Germans hold strong positions, were repulsed, according to the German report.

To the southward, at the bend of the line, the Germans continue to make furious but futile attempts to break the French line. Along the Meuse in the east, according to the French account, the Germans have failed to repulse the French troops who debouched along the territory in which is situated the Camp des Romaines, now in the hands of the Germans, in an attempt to cut out that portion of the German army which is thrust toward St. Mihiel.

French Report Progress.

Generally speaking, the French say they have made some detailed progress at various points along the front. Paris reports the allies have destroyed fifteen German machine guns, two of which were armored, near La Basses, and a battery of heavy German artillery in the environs of St. Mihiel.

Both sides are bringing reinforcements to the western front, where one of the supreme struggles of the war is on. The Germans are not bringing new troops from the east, but are throwing every available man in Belgium into the firing line. They seem to have the railroads working well, although they must have been damaged seriously during the battles in August and September.

Troops are being transported over them, and Dutch sources report that many trains of wounded are being taken back to Germany. In the fighting in this open country, where the men have not the protection of elaborate entrenchments such as they have on the Aisne, the losses must be very heavy, especially where endeavors are made to carry positions by assault.

German and Russian reports agree that the situation in the east has not changed, although the armies are in close touch along the Eastern Prussian frontier and across Poland and Galicia. In Galicia, however, the Austrians claim to have repulsed Russian attacks and to be making progress in their campaign to drive out the invaders.

The Russians, on the other hand, say they are taking large numbers of prisoners. Heavy fighting is still going on around Przemyśl and the cupolas of the forts surrounding the town are said by an Italian correspondent to have been destroyed by the big Russian siege guns, while the forts have been mined and dismantled and the magazines blown up. The town itself, however, has not been damaged.

HAS NO LUCK, TRIES TO DIE AND FAILS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—John Doyle had just celebrated his fiftieth birthday without ever having any luck.

He decided to end his life, he was so tired of being unlucky. He tied one end of a clothesline around his neck, the other end around the rails of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific road at the Seventy-third street viaduct.

Then he squirmed between the ties, prepared to drop to his death, when a switch engine came along and cut the rope.

CARUSO AIDS ROME BENEFIT

Rome, Oct. 21.—An extraordinary performance was given at the Costanzi theater for the benefit of needy emigrants who have returned to Italy. It yielded about $20,000. Among the singers who appeared was Enrico Caruso who had not previously been heard in Rome since 1903.

TWO KILLED, 12 HURT IN BOMB EXPLOSION

Russian Tenement House in Montreal Is Wrecked.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Two men were killed, a dozen others were injured and a tenement block was wrecked here by an explosion on Frontenac street, supposed to have been caused by a bomb.

Paul Belanger and Joseph Lafreniere, who were passing along Frontenac street at the time, told the police that they saw two men who looked like foreigners carry a large round object into one of the doorways of the block.

An instant later a terrific explosion occurred and the body of one of the men was hurled back on the sidewalk. The other man did not reappear and is supposed to have been buried in the ruins.

The block was occupied mainly by Russians, most of whom were eating supper with their families when the explosion came. The escape of the tenants from death is considered remarkable, as the interior of the house was wrecked from cellar to roof.

Special to The Dispatch:—

London, Oct. 21, 11:30 A. M.—An engagement between German torpedo boats and hostile submarines in the Baltic off the Prussian coast is reported from Stockholm. No details of the fight or result are given.

TRY TO BREAK CIRCLE OF STEEL

Special to The Dispatch:—

London, Oct. 21, 11:30 A. M.—A dispatch from Bordeaux says, "On Tuesday the Germans made another great effort to burst the narrow circle of steel now hemming them in. They tried vainly at no fewer than six points to discover a weak spot on the Allied front their main effort being made at La Basses."

VARIOUS REPORTS FROM WAR ZONE

Special to The Dispatch:—

London, Oct. 21, 3:05 P. M.—The Germans continue their attempt to add Dunkirk to their list of coast cities, occupied by them, but the Allies have repulsed attacks at Dixmude, Nieuport and La Basses and are reported fighting six miles south of Ostend. Lille, commanding the communications in the western wing is the main objective of the Allies. The situation in the remainder of the battle line in France is not materially changed. The German advance in Russian Poland causes anxiety in Petrograd as to Warsaw. The German-Austrian forces still hold Przemyśl and the Austrians claim victories in central Galicia, where desperate fighting is reported.

JAPANESE LOSE HEAVILY IDENTIFIED AS FARGO COUPLE

Thousands Fall in Fighting Before Tsingtau.

Peking, China, Oct. 21.—Refugees, who have come out of Tsingtau, the fortified position in the German possession in Shantung province, are authorities for the statement that up to the time they left the Japanese had lost several thousand men before Tsingtau, while the casualties of the Germans did not amount to more than several hundred.

Arrivals at the Chinese capital from Siberia say that Russian troop trains are traveling westward over the trans-Siberian railway hourly.

An uncensored letter received in Peking from a reliable correspondent within the Japanese lines, dated October 9, says that the Japanese attacked Tsingtau on several nights, but invariably were repulsed. Once, the correspondent says, the Germans followed the Japanese successfully for a short distance.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN EUROPE.

The Germans not only are attempting an advance along the coast of the North sea to the French ports, but have attacked the allies at many points on the battle front from the extreme north to the heights of the Meuse.

In the north the Belgian army has held its ground with tenacity, while at La Basse around Arras, between Peronne and Albert, to the east of the Argonne and along the Meuse the German offensive has been repulsed. This is the substance of the French official report.

The German report says particularly in the vicinity of Lille the situation favors the Germans.

Thirty thousand Germans are reported to have occupied the coast between Ostend and Nieuport and to have dug trenches along the dykes from Middelkerke to Westende, but later advices declare they have been repulsed near the latter town and that their guns are now near Ostend, which they still occupy.

The Russian commander-in-chief announces tersely there is no change in the situation. With this the Berlin official statement agrees.

EVIDENCE IN CARMAN CASE

Murdered Woman Declared to Be Near Motherhood.

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 21.—The fact that Mrs. Louise Bailey was a prospective mother when she was shot and killed in Dr. Carman's office was revealed when Dr. Howard M. Phipps testified regarding the autopsy on Mrs. Bailey's body.

He stated this condition existed and there was evidence an attempt had been made to prevent its development.

ALLIES DEFEAT GERMANS IN FOG

French Marines Rout Germans From Trenches.

THREE BATTALIONS DESTROYED

Ingenuity of French Proves Costly for Teutons—Budapest Crowded With Wounded Men—Discharged Soldiers Depending Upon Relief Organizations.

From the Battle Front, Oct. 21, via Paris.—The German invaders are meeting a vigorous resistance in their effort to shorten their lines and rest their right wing further southward upon the English channel. Much of the fighting is being done in the obscurity of fogs.

French marines gave a good account of themselves. German troops tried a surprise attack on the marines, but the French force held the field works against superior numbers. The fight lasted all day, and then the Germans contented themselves with cannonading the position of the marines.

A thick fog covered the entire region and the marines, accustomed to such weather conditions, crept toward the German trenches.

400 Prisoners Taken.

The marines got within thirty feet of the trenches before they were seen. Their coming was heralded too late for the defenders, who were bayoneted in the trenches and beyond the trenches as they ran. Four hundred German prisoners were taken.

The French took the position for the twelfth time and held it ten hours. Then came a shock of the human battering ram and the French gradually gave way. The Germans began fortifying the place, but while they were engaged in this task the earth heaved and there was a deafening explosion. The ten hours the French had held the point had been sufficient to mine every rod of the ground. It is estimated that three German battalions were annihilated.

The strength of the German position north of Roye, which facilitated their movements toward Lille, is explained by the fact that they were occupying an unfinished canal extending as far as Roisel.

Budapest, via Paris, Oct. 21.—Budapest is filled with wounded soldiers who arrive daily in trainloads. The new military hospital just opened, has 3,600 beds and another barracks hospital has been started which will accommodate 4,000 sick or wounded.

Great difficulty is being experienced in finding doctors to attend the great mass of men who are being brought into the city.

Reports from Trieste say that wounded soldiers are arriving there and at Gorizia and other towns in southern Austria in great numbers. In many cases convalescent soldiers are being dismissed from the hospitals and given permission to return to their homes. Large numbers of them, it is said, are without means and almost starving and are compelled to appeal to relief organizations for aid.

DETECTIVE HEADS REMOVED

Chicago Officers Transferred Pending Probe.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Captain John J. Halpin, chief of the detective bureau, and Lieutenant John H. Tobin, second in command, were removed from this branch of police work by Mayor Harrison. Both were sent to outlying police stations.

The transfer, the mayor said, was temporary and to facilitate investigation into charges of illegal relations between members of the detective force and certain criminals.

The deposed lieutenant was named in a warrant obtained Friday by C. P. Bertsche as accessory in the plot to assault him.

Influences Public Opinion.

Petrograd, Oct. 21.—The ministry of the interior reports it has received information that there exists in Romania a secret society controlled by Germany, the purpose of which is to influence public opinion through the press. The society is said to have a capital of $4,400,000. The ministry of the interior says also that devastation followed the Austrian invasion of the Russian governments of Lublin and Kholm. In these governments 4,250 houses were burned, with a loss of $1,500,000.

FOR NATIONAL STRIKE FUND

Textile Workers Propose to Raise Millions of Dollars.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 21.—A movement to have the American Federation of Labor raise a national strike fund that would reach millions of dollars in an effort to obtain a closed shop in the textile industry was endorsed by the United Textile Workers of America in annual convention here.

It is proposed to assess all labor organizations affiliated with that body.

Joseph M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, who has been in charge of the government's side of the case since it was instituted in October, 1911, took the entire day in presenting the prosecution and will continue tomorrow.

The hearing is being held before four judges sitting as the United States court for the district of New Jersey.

Douglas, Ariz., Oct. 21.—General Carranza has ordered General Benjamin Hill, commanding the garrison at Naco, Sonora, to advance upon Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, as soon as possible, according to telegrams said to have been exchanged between Hill and Juan Cabral.

Hill is besieged at Naco by the forces of Governor Maytorena, but he expressed the intention of carrying out the order of the "first chief."

The telegraphic correspondence, as given out by Constitutional representatives here, shows that Aureliano Gonzales, representative of General Villa and at present acting governor of Hermosillo, in place of Maytorena, has offered to guarantee Villa will send no troops into Sonora if Hill will agree not to advance on Hermosillo. ### PRUSSIA PROPOSES LOAN

Bill Will Permit Government to Borrow $375,000,000 to Cover Deficiency in Revenues—Aid Planned for Agricultural Organizations.

Berlin, Oct. 21 (via London).—According to a Russian newspaper received here the Russian government has instructed the civilian authorities of Warsaw to abandon that city and take refuge in Petrograd, if the German troops get within thirty miles of the town.

The civil administration and also the civil population, the newspaper adds, are about to depart for Petrograd, the military commander at Warsaw having advised this step, declaring he expects a long siege.

The North German Gazette, the official organ of the German government, publishes the bill which will be sent to the Prussian diet in extra session October 22. Under this bill the government is permitted to borrow $375,000,000 to cover the deficiency in public revenues caused by the war and to give relief to the people of East Prussia who are in distress as a result of the Russian invasion.

Among other measures contemplated for action by the special session of the diet are the granting of credits to her agricultural organizations for erecting potato-drying machinery and for buying motor plows to insure the planting of full grain crops.

HOSPITALS AND MEN NEEDED

London, Oct. 21.—"The Russians at Warsaw," says a Marconi dispatch from Berlin, "are greatly inconvenienced by inadequate sanitary arrangements and lack of hospitals."

"Kiev, Moscow and other places in Russia are overcrowded. Troops from Bessarabia are being sent to the Caucasus, where the rebellion is difficult to crush."

"There is a shortage of Russian officers and noncommissioned men."

"Despite the numerical superiority of the enemy's forces at Warsaw, General von Hindenburg is confident of victory."

"The Austrian offensive in Galicia is making progress. The Russians in their attacks before Przemyśl lost 40,000 men whereas the Austro-Hungarian casualties in the same engagement were only 500."

The telegraphic correspondence, as given out by Constitutional representatives here, shows that Aureliano Gonzalez, representative of General Villa and at present acting governor of Hermosillo, in place of Maytorena, has offered to guarantee Villa will send no troops into Sonora if Hill will agree not to advance on Hermosillo. Hill refused to consider this proposal.

WOULD ROUTE "EGG TRUST"

Merchandise Exchange Alleged to Be Restraining Competition.

New York, Oct. 21.—A hearing in the proceedings brought by Attorney General Parsons of New York against the Mercantile exchange of this city on the charge that it is restraining competition in butter and eggs, will begin here soon before a referee.

The anti-trust proceedings are directed also against the cold storage warehouses and the packing houses including the Armour and Swift companies, in an endeavor to break up an alleged egg dealing monopoly in this city.

Many Officers Missing.

London, Oct. 21.—A casualty list of noncommissioned officers, under date of September 17, just issued, reports 95 wounded and 900 missing, of whom more than 600 belonged to the Royal Munster Fusiliers. Another casualty list, dated October 16-18, reports five officers killed and twelve wounded.

PREPARE TO LEAVE WARSAW

Civilian Authorities Advised to Withdraw.

PRUSSIA PROPOSES LOAN

Bill Will Permit Government to Borrow $375,000,000 to Cover Deficiency in Revenues—Aid Planned for Agricultural Organizations.

Berlin, Oct. 21 (via London).—According to a Russian newspaper received here the Russian government has instructed the civilian authorities of Warsaw to abandon that city and take refuge in Petrograd, if the German troops get within thirty miles of the town.

The civil administration and also the civil population, the newspaper adds, are about to depart for Petrograd, the military commander at Warsaw having advised this step, declaring he expects a long siege.

The North German Gazette, the official organ of the German government, publishes the bill which will be sent to the Prussian diet in extra session October 22. Under this bill the government is permitted to borrow $375,000,000 to cover the deficiency in public revenues caused by the war and to give relief to the people of East Prussia who are in distress as a result of the Russian invasion.

Among other measures contemplated for action by the special session of the diet are the granting of credits to her agricultural organizations for erecting potato-drying machinery and for buying motor plows to insure the planting of full grain crops.

HOSPITALS AND MEN NEEDED

Many Cities Overcrowded and Conditions Bad.

London, Oct. 21.—"The Russians at Warsaw," says a Marconi dispatch from Berlin, "are greatly inconvenienced by inadequate sanitary arrangements and lack of hospitals."

Kiev, Moscow and other places in Russia are overcrowded. Troops from Bessarabia are being sent to the Caucasus, where the rebellion is difficult to crush.

"There is a shortage of Russian officers and noncommissioned men."

"Despite the numerical superiority of the enemy's forces at Warsaw, General von Hindenburg is confident of victory."

"The Austrian offensive in Galicia is making progress. The Russians in their attacks before Przemyśl lost 40,000 men whereas the Austro-Hungarian casualties in the same engagement were only 500."

Destroy Aeroplane a Day.

London, Oct. 21.—"The aviation problem is being handled wonderfully by the German forces," says a German official wireless dispatch from Berlin received by the Marconi company. "The aeroplane work of the French is not to be compared with ours. So far the Germans have destroyed on an average of one aeroplane daily."

30,000 Germans on Coast.

Amsterdam, Oct. 21.—The Telegraph publishes a dispatch concerning the fighting Sunday, in which, the correspondent says, 30,000 Germans occupied the coast between Ostend and Nieuport and dug trenches along the dykes from Middelkerke to Westende.

South African Rebels Taken.

London, Oct. 21.—A Pretoria dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says three officers and seventy men of Colonel Maritz' rebel force in South Africa have been captured and that four officers and forty men have voluntarily surrendered.

SHERIFF ARRESTS MAYOR

Butte Official Is Charged With Criminal Libel.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 21.—Mayor Clarence A. Smith was arrested by Sheriff Berkin on a charge of criminal libel.

The warrant for the arrest of the mayor was issued by Justice of the Peace Doran, and was sworn to by Otto W. Pufahl. The charge of criminal libel grows out of an article published in the Butte Socialist, of which Smith is editor, in which a personal attack was made on Pufahl.

MUSIC AND DRAMA
At the Grand
"Jim Webb, Senator," appears at the Grand tonight and Thursday. A three reeler featuring King Baggot. That love will regenerate and make pure in one case, and break down the standards of honesty and decent morals in another, is not to be disputed. The effect of pure love tends towards higher ideals and sterner morals. All this is vividly portrayed when Jim Webb was elected to congress. He was a handsome young lawyer and honest from the word go. Jim, as played by King Baggot, the popular screen hero, is one of the most entralling studies of human conceived for the screen. The slow metamorphosis of the man, from the frank, chummy, quaintly dressed young southerner into the brilliant statesman is more than interesting to watch. Allied with this change in the man are dark political plots, grim fighting in the secret committee chambers of congress and the indomitable will of a beautiful woman. Another phase that establishes this play as being different than the ordinary play is the intimate insight given into the political workings of a great political machine controlled and regulated by big money. One is shown just why all senators do not vote as they believe on the floor of the senate—the crushing influence that can be brought to bear on a new representative who serenely believes that honesty can guide the political helm.
The management is confident of this big drawing card along with the European war slides. All next week, Oct. 26 to 1, inclusive, is Red Cross benefit for European war sufferers at the Grand under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Essanay company as comedy producers if the present pace is kept, will soon outstrip all other film producers in the world in that line of work. It is a well constructed comedy and carried out in a manner suitable to the average American audience. We will admit there are those who do not like this style of comedy but how anyone can resist many hearty laughs while viewing this picture would be beyond our calculations. SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED
Mother! Don't hesitate! If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"
Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle thorough cleansing at once.
When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.
You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv. 11812

MUSIC AND DRAMA*At the Grand

"Jim Webb, Senator," appears at the Grand tonight and Thursday. A three reeler featuring King Baggot.
That love will regenerate and make pure in one case, and break down the standards of honesty and decent morals in another, is not to be disputed.
The effect of pure love tends towards higher ideals and sterner morals. All this is vividly portrayed when Jim Webb was elected to congress. He was a handsome young lawyer and honest from the word go. Jim, as played by King Baggot, the popular screen hero, is one of the most entailing studies of human conceived for the screen. The slow metamorphosis of the man, from the frank, chummy, quaintly dressed young southerner into the brilliant statesman is more than interesting to watch. Allied with this change in the man are dark political plots, grim fighting in the secret committee chambers of congress and the indomitable will of a beautiful woman.
Another phase that establishes this play as being different than the ordinary play is the intimate insight given into the political workings of a great political machine controlled and regulated by big money. One is shown just why all senators do not vote as they believe on the floor of the senate—the crushing influence that can be brought to bear on a new representative who serenely believes that honesty can guide the political helm.

The management is confident of this big drawing card along with the European war slides. All next week, Oct. 26 to 1, inclusive, is Red Cross benefit for European war sufferers at the Grand under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

WOMAN'S REALM

MRS. WILLIAM NELSON WRITES OF TRIP

Visited Norway and Denmark and Related Interesting Experiences in the Old Country

THE FOURTH IN NORWAY

Visits Her Old Home in Romsdalen, Famous for its Beauty, and in Land of Midnight Sun

At the request of the Dispatch, Mrs. Wm. Nelson, wife of the secretary of the water and light board, has kindly written of her experiences in her recent visit in Norway and Denmark. Mrs. Nelson says:

On June 1st we left Brainerd for a visit to our old home in Norway. Our party consisted of my sister, Julia Anderson of Portland, Ore., my little daughter and myself. Several Brainerd people who had preceded us we met in New York just prior to going aboard the steamer "United States." Our trip across the Atlantic was not very pleasant to most of us. Anyone who is not familiar with sea sickness cannot appreciate a fortnight on the ocean with a severe attack of sea sickness. A few of the passengers who were more fortunate in not being quite so sick were very kind to us and relieved the voyage of some of the fear of helplessness in mid ocean.

We left New York harbor on June 4th and arrived at Copenhagen, Denmark, on June 16th. What a pretty spot Denmark is with all its beach-wood and rye fields. We spent about three weeks in Copenhagen, taking in the different museums, parks, glyptothec and the Zoo. The Zoo in Copenhagen is supposed to be the most complete in the world and it was a great study for my little girl. She always remembers that part of our trip. We visited my husband's sister and family in Copenhagen and had a splendid time.

Our trip from Copenhagen to Christiania across the Cattegat, was uneventful save a severe attack of sea sickness, the water being exceptionally rough. Fortunately it lasted only 19 hours and we were glad to know that we were that much nearer our old home.

We spent the 4th of July in Christiania, Norway, where we celebrated in real American style. Mr. Loeland, the president of the Storthing who is so well known since Norway became independent in 1905, bid us welcome and Governor Hanna of North Dakota was the speaker of the day. After the oration a statue of Abraham Lincoln was unveiled by Governor Hannan's daughter with proper ceremonies and we had a great 4th of July so far away from home. We stayed only a couple of days in Christiania being anxious to get home to our folks and rest up.

We took the train from Christiania to Trondhjem where we visited one of my sisters. Trondhjem is one of the oldest cities in Scandinavia and certainly very interesting. While there we attended services at the Trondhjem cathedral.

We took our sister with us and together we went for our old home to visit our parents who are both living in the same old home.

Our home is in the historic Romsdalen, so famous for its beauty and being far enough north we could appreciate the midnight sun. During the first week we simply could not go to sleep in those surroundings and we walked on the ocean beach until long after midnight, admiring the scenery and the quietness of the fjord which is only 500 feet from our home on the west. On the east were the mountains with the snow-covered peaks even in July. We intended to come home to America about September 1st, but owing to the European war we were unable to get transportation until October 3d. They had us scared for awhile, it looked as though we would have to put up our winter quarters in Norway. Although Norway is fascinating there is no place like home.

There is not so much excitement about the war in Norway as people here would think. With exception of having coast defenses ready and the increased cost of living it is not so bad.

Only a few days after the war broke out all kinds of food stuffs advanced to nearly double the cost it was before the war. For instance, a sack of flour (100 pounds) which sold before the war at 25 kroner (about $6.50) was raised to 60 kroner per sack. Everything else was raised in proportion. After some days however, the government fixed the prices at which all foodstuffs should be sold —the price of flour was fixed at 35 kroner per sack. Norway imports most of her flour from Russia and Denmark, but since the war all flour comes from the United States.

After saying good-bye to father and mother we left home on Sept. 30th and on Oct. 3d we boarded "Bergenford" at Bergen, Norway, for America.

Bergenford is a very nice boat to travel in and the trip would have been fine if—well, we were sea sick again.

The regular route of this line is north of Scotland, between Scotland and the Faroe Islands, but owing to the floating mines in the North Sea, the route was changed to north of the Faroe Islands. It was the 19th trip of the Bergenford and she has never had any accident and the only disease on this trip was sea sickness. We had 1,375 people on board.

On Oct. 9th we passed a middle-sized iceberg, it was grounded on the banks about six miles southeast of Cape Race. It was 57 feet above and 400 feet below water and about 300 feet long. On the same day we passed Kristianfjord, the sistership of our boat, going east with only 245 passengers.

We reached New York Oct. 12th and took the shortest route home and say, that old Brainerd depot looked pretty good to us.

In the party were Miss Hannah Greer, Miss Carrie McDougall, Miss Mayme Saunders, Miss Ethel Greene, Miss Zada Price, Miss Edna Baker, Miss Wilcox, Miss Florence Schrader, Miss Louisa Anderson, Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Walsh, Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Kunz, Miss Randall, Miss Moreland, Miss Harrison, Miss Anna Erickson, Miss Clara Erickson, Miss Rounds, Mrs. Gordon Wilcox and others.

TEACHERS LEAGUE

Regular Meeting Held Tuesday Evening. Guests of Miss Claire Barker

The regular meeting of the Teachers League occurred last evening, the teachers being the guests of Miss Claire Barker, 801 Holly street.

The election of officers took place, the result being the election of Miss Barrett president, Miss Scott first vice president, Miss Small second vice president, Miss Kruger third vice president, and Miss Elizabeth Walsh secretary-treasurer.

New members were received and letters from the secretary of the committee on teachers' retirement fund and from the national president of league were read.

Miss Scott and Miss Small were appointed as delegates to represent the local league at the meeting of classroom teachers to be held in connection with the M. E. A. next Friday in St. Paul.

Mrs. W. C. Cobb was present from the Civic Welfare committee of the Musical club and important matters relating to the good of the schools brought out earnest discussion of ways and means. The executive board of the league will act with the musical club committee in regard to the matters under consideration.

After the business meeting a social hour was much enjoyed by all present. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. and Miss Barker and the league adjourned to meet Nov. 10 at the Whittier building.

Needlework Revivals

Lace assumes more and more an important place in the domain of home furnishing and drawing room decoration. It is so important that upholsterers have to employ lacemakers and are obliged to make lace purchases on a considerable scale. Among other things pianos and windows are draped with lace leaving room for legitimate upholstery to come afterwards. All styles are available. The "Renaissance" combines with lace of quite modern origin. And, combining with all, and second to none in fashion or effect, is the old-fashioned crochet. The present taste for crochet denotes a remarkable revival in this kind of thing. Another revival beside it, and making common cause with house and especially drawing room decoration, is the equally old-fashioned netting. For long years past this species of handwork had been left almost exclusively to fisherman and their wives.

It served for fishing nets and that was about all. But now it is coming back as fast as it can to the place it occupied let us say, a hundred years ago, in the repertoire of fancy work for women. Then was the time when dainty slipper-cased feet were put forward and used in the services of the kind of fancy work known as netting. Now machinery does a great deal of the work which human fingers aided by the foot used to do, but whether wrought by fingers or machinery, it remains a fact that old fashioned netting is a distinct revival, and that its presence in drawing rooms in the way of decoration gives an up-to-date appearance and throws an air of fashion around. The effects of embroidery upon it are now more artistic than of yore—nature as well as pictures often serving as models.

NOKAY LAKE REVIVAL

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin Closed a Very Successful Meeting There on Sunday

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin closed a successful revival meeting at Nokay Lake twelve miles east of Brainerd Sunday night. The meeting was in progress nine days and was in many ways a remarkable campaign.

Only eleven preaching services were held during the nine days of the revival, but the total number of converts was seventy-five, mostly adults and many were heads of families.

There were seventeen professions in answer to the invitation Friday night, October 16th, and there were thirty-three conversions at three services on Sunday, the last day of the meeting. On the last day the building in which the services were held proved to be too small for the crowds and many were obliged to remain outside during the afternoon and night services.

County Attorney G. S. Swanson and P. J. Walters each furnished an automobile to bring to the Sunday afternoon services members of the men's evangelistic teams from the Methodist and Baptist churches of Brainerd. Mr. Swanson made an interesting twenty minute address as also did Rev. Elbert E. Satterlee, pastor of the Methodist church of Brainerd who was present.

Evangelist Martin pronounced the Nokay revival the best he has held for many months. Rev. Lorenzo Johnson, Methodist pastor at Cutler who has a regular preaching appointment at Nokay, rendered assistance during the revival.

The following members of the Brainerd men's evangelistic teams were present and spoke at the Sunday afternoon services: George Tracy, president of the Baptist team and his coworkers John Vanderwerk, Delos Turner and L. O. Kelsen; D. T. Lawrence, president of the Methodist team and his coworkers, G. N. Grant and J. H. Noble. Rev. E. E. Satterlee also accompanied them.

KILLING WITH THE COLD STEEL

Is "Too Revolting" But With the Gun, that is a Different Thing, According to a Lieutenant

ONE INSIDE INTO WAR METHODS

Men Are Killed Rather than be Bothered With Them if They are Mad Prisoners

Herbert Corey, writing from Antwerp under date of Oct. 1st:

"Never," said Hamerschlag, the Belgian, "never could I learn to kill a man with the steel. It is too revolting."

Those sitting about the table in Criterion cafe nodded their heads understandingly. It was quite too revolting, they all agreed. One cried so when one died. And the blood—and the resistance of the warm, firm flesh to the bayonet.

"Now," said Hamerschlag, "the gun—it is clean."

All agreed that the gun is clean. One killed at a distance, is it not? One was spared the unpleasant details of his victim's death. It is not often that one observed the victim even thresh about in his death agony. And, of course, the barking gun drowned the cries. The short, round-faced, strongly built private sitting by Hamerschlag's side assumed a certain air of superior knowledge.

"It is so at first, of course," said he. "One regrets to kill one's first man. One almost hesitates. But afterward—I cannot explain the feeling that possesses one."

"Nevertheless," said Hamerschlag, after a thoughtful interval, "I prefer the gun. It is clean."

Hamerschlag is the lieutenant in charge of one of the Belgian motor mitrailleuses. The private was one of the three men who accompany him upon his lethal raids. They had been out all day, as they were almost every day.

If the German has taught the world the value of motor transport, the Belgian has added the lesson of the armored scout. It has darkened some thousands of German homes.

The men were sitting in a stall of the Criterion, that cafe to which M. Escoffier, the king of chefs, sends an occasional menu, in the full confidence that justice will be done it in M. Keller's kitchen. Outside the streets were dark as the inside of a chimney. Not one ray of light escaped through the Criterion's blinds. The doors were locked, for it was almost 10 o'clock. M. Keller indicated that even his patriotic fervor was not proof against fear of the police.

"Soon you must go," said he, "but first—what of today's work, Hamerschlag?"

It had been rather unsatisfactory it appears. The most noteworthy incident was that which led to the discussion quoted above. Rounding a corner, the road soft, their motor noiseless, they had come upon a single German scout. Through some absolutely inexplicable folly he had laid down his musket, and the silent motor slid between him and his weapon.

"We do not take prisoners," said Hamerschlag. "We cannot be bothered with them. We could not let him go to give the alarm, and a shot might have brought the German horns buzzing about our ears."

"So it has fallen to Jakel, the private, to put an end to this German. In his panic the man had run straight down the road. Hearing the motor humming behind him he had turned and thrown up his hands. He was hardly 20," Hamerschlag said. "There was a soft brown down upon his cheeks. He had begged piteously in German."

"But what could we do?" asked Hamerschlag. "It was sad, but we were helpless."

"I had rather he had fought," said Jakel.

Antwerp has perhaps a score of these motor mitrailleuses. Some few of them are armored, but for the most part they are fast passenger cars in which a mitrailleuse has been strongly bolted. Always a stout plate of steel takes the place of the usual windshield. Peepholes are cut in it, so that upon occasion the driver may crouch down under its protection. Every morning some of them run out into the country on scouting expeditions. That afternoon one finds the cars standing in the street in front of a cafe. The four men of the crew loitered in the seats, retelling the day's adventures to an admiring group.

"Once we were almost caught," said Hamerschlag. "We ran past a clump of trees, suspecting nothing. Then, ahead, we saw the Germans filing into the road from behind some bushes. We turned the car, and from the trees we had passed other Germans ran into the road. It was quite filled with them."

There was but thing to do. The second man in the forward compartment seized the wheel firmly, that he might hold the car in the road if the driver was shot. The second man in the gunner's compartment crouched at Hamerschlag's feet, to be protected from bullets. Hamerschlag gave the word:

"Give her all she's got!"

The driver threw open the cut out and tamed on all his juice. Fortunately, there was room in which to get up to racing speed. Bullets hummed past their ears from behind. The mitrailleuse cracked over the driver's head upon the Germans in the road ahead. They were firing, too. A dozen fresh splashes of lead upon the car told that night of the relative accuracy of their aim. But not a man in the car was hurt. Hamerschlag thinks the Germans were pardonably nervous, the circumstances being considered. But they held their ground.

"The fools," said Jakel. "We tore right through them. The jolt when the car hit them almost threw me at their feet."

Hamerschlag doesn't like that sort of an affair. He is of a refined, almost of an aesthetic temperament, is Hamerschlag. He likes to do his killing in an impersonal sort of way. The inevitably messy details of a hand-to-hand conflict revolt him.

"In the afternoon," said he, "we caught a patrol of four Uhlans on a level stretch of road, as we came over a hill which was masked in trees. They had not a shelter as big as an umbrella. The range was about 500 yards. I think I am best at about 500 yards. At a greater distance I persistently overshoot."

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced emollients, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh of the bladder a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. J. A. Cloney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from it drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. ### MRS. WILLIAM NELSON WRITES OF TRIP

Visited Norway and Denmark and Relates Interesting Experiences in the Old Country

THE FOURTH IN NORWAY

Visits Her Old Home in Romsdalen, Famous for its Beauty, and in Land of Midnight Sun

At the request of the Dispatch, Mrs. Wm. Nelson, wife of the secretary of the water and light board, has kindly written of her experiences in her recent visit in Norway and Denmark. Mrs. Nelson says:

On June 1st we left Brainerd for a visit to our old home in Norway. Our party consisted of my sister, Julia Anderson of Portland, Ore., my little daughter and myself. Several Brainerd people who had preceded us we met in New York just prior to going aboard the steamer "United States." Our trip across the Atlantic was not very pleasant to most of us. Anyone who is not familiar with sea sickness cannot appreciate a fortnight on the ocean with a severe attack of sea sickness. A few of the passengers who were more fortunate in not being quite so sick were very kind to us and relieved the voyage of some of the fear of helplessness in mid ocean.

We left New York harbor on June 4th and arrived at Copenhagen, Denmark, on June 16th. What a pretty spot Denmark is with all its beach-wood and rye fields. We spent about three weeks in Copenhagen, taking in the different museums, parks, glyptothec and the Zoo. The Zoo in Copenhagen is supposed to be the most complete in the world and it was a great study for my little girl. She always remembers that part of our trip. We visited my husband's sister and family in Copenhagen and had a splendid time.

Our trip from Copenhagen to Christiania across the Cattegat, was uneventful save a severe attack of sea sickness, the water being exceptionally rough. Fortunately it lasted only 19 hours and we were glad to know that we were that much nearer our old home.

We spent the 4th of July in Christiania, Norway, where we celebrated in real American style. Mr. Loeland, the president of the Storting who is so well known since Norway became independent in 1905, bid us welcome and Governor Hanna of North Dakota was the speaker of the day. After the oration a statue of Abraham Lincoln was unveiled by Governor Hannan's daughter with proper ceremonies and we had a great 4th of July so far away from home. We stayed only a couple of days in Christiania being anxious to get home to our folks and rest up.

We took the train from Christiania to Trondhjem where we visited one of my sisters. Trondhjem is one of the oldest cities in Scandinavia and certainly very interesting. While there we attended services at the Trondhjem cathedral.

We took our sister with us and together we went for our old home to visit our parents who are both living in the same old home.

Our home is in the historic Romsdalen, so famous for its beauty and being far enough north we could appreciate the midnight sun. During the first week we simply could not go to sleep in those surroundings and we walked on the ocean beach until long after midnight, admiring the scenery and the quietness of the fjord which is only 500 feet from our home on the west. On the east were the mountains with the snow-covered peaks even in July. We intended to come home to America about September 1st, but owing to the European war we were unable to get transportation until October 3d. They had us scared for awhile, it looked as though we would have to put up our winter quarters in Norway. Although Norway is fascinating there is no place like home.

There is not so much excitement about the war in Norway as people here would think. With exception of having coast defenses ready and the increased cost of living it is not so bad.

Only a few days after the war broke out all kinds of food stuffs advanced to nearly double the cost it was before the war. For instance, a sack of flour (100 pounds) which sold before the war at 25 kroner (about $6.50) was raised to 60 kroner per sack. Everything else was raised in proportion. After some days however, the government fixed the prices at which all foodstuffs should be sold the price of flour was fixed at 35 kroner per sack.

Norway imports most of her flour from Russia and Denmark, but since the war all flour comes from the United States.

After saying good-bye to father and mother we left home on Sept. 30th and on Oct. 3d we boarded "Bergenford" at Bergen, Norway, for America.

Bergenford is a very nice boat to travel in and the trip would have been fine if—well, we were sea sick again.

The regular route of this line is north of Scotland, between Scotland and the Faroe Islands, but owing to the floating mines in the North Sea, the route was changed to north of the Faroe Islands. It was the 19th trip of the Bergenford and she has never had any accident and the only disease on this trip was sea sickness. We had 1,375 people on board.

On Oct. 9th we passed a middle-sized iceberg, it was grounded on the banks about six miles southeast of Cape Race. It was 57 feet above and 400 feet below water and about 300 feet long. On the same day we passed Kristianfjord, the sistership of our boat, going east with only 245 passengers.

We reached New York Oct. 12th and took the shortest route home and say, that old Brainerd depot looked pretty good to us.

In the party were Miss Hannah Greer, Miss Carrie McDougall, Miss Mayme Saunders, Miss Ethel Greene, Miss Zada Price, Miss Edna Baker, Miss Wilcox, Miss Florence Schrader, Miss Louise Anderson, Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Walsh, Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Kunz, Miss Randall, Miss Moreland, Miss Harrison, Miss Anna Erickson, Miss Clara Erickson, Miss Rounds, Mrs. Gordon Wilcox and others.

TEACHERS LEAGUE

Regular Meeting Held Tuesday Evening, Guests of Miss Claire Barker

The regular meeting of the Teachers League occurred last evening, the teachers being the guests of Miss Claire Barker, 801 Holly street. The election of officers took place, the result being the election of Miss Barrett president, Miss Scott first vice president, Miss Small second vice president, Mrs. Kruger third vice president, and Miss Elizabeth Walsh secretary-treasurer.

New members were received and letters from the secretary of the committee on teachers' retirement fund and from the national president of league were read.

Miss Scott and Miss Small were appointed as delegates to represent the local league at the meeting of class room teachers to be held in connection with the M. E. A. next Friday in St. Paul.

Mrs. W. C. Cobb was present from the Civic Welfare committee of the Musical club and important matters relating to the good of the schools brought out earnest discussion of ways and means. The executive board of the league will act with the musical club committee in regard to the matters under consideration.

After the business meeting a social hour was much enjoyed by all present. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. and Miss Barker and the league adjourned to meet Nov. 10 at the Whittier building.

Needlework Revivals

Lace assumes more and more an important place in the domain of home furnishing and drawing room decoration. It is so important that upholsterers have to employ lacemakers and are obliged to make lace purchases on a considerable scale. Among other things pianos and windows are draped with lace leaving room for legitimate upholstery to come afterwards. All styles are available. The "Renaissance" combines with lace of quite modern origin. And, combining with all, and second to none in fashion or effect, is the old-fashioned crochet. The present taste for crochet denotes a remarkable revival in this kind of thing. Another revival beside it, and making common cause with house and especially drawing room decoration, is the equally old-fashioned netting. For long years past this species of handwork had been left almost exclusively to fisherman and their wives.

It served for fishing nets and that was about all. But now it is coming back as fast as it can to the place it occupied let us say, a hundred years ago, in the repertoire of fancy work for women. Then was the time when dainty slipper-cased feet were put forward and used in the services of the kind of fancy work known as netting. Now machinery does a great deal of the work which human fingers aided by the foot used to do. But whether wrought by fingers or machinery, it remains a fact that old fashioned netting is a distinct revival, and that its presence in drawing rooms in the way of decoration gives an up-to-date appearance and throws an air of fashion around. The effects of embroidery upon it are now more artistic than of yore—nature as well as pictures often serving as models.

NOKAY LAKE REVIVAL

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin Closed
a Very Successful Meeting
There on Sunday

Evangelist Clarence J. Martin closed a successful revival meeting at Nokay Lake twelve miles east of Brainerd Sunday night. The meeting was in progress nine days and was in many ways a remarkable campaign.

Only eleven preaching services were held during the nine days of the revival, but the total number of converts was seventy-five, mostly adults and many were heads of families.

There were seventeen professions in answer to the invitation Friday night, October 16th, and there were thirty-three conversions at three services on Sunday, the last day of the meeting. On the last day the building in which the services were held proved to be too small for the crowds and many were obliged to remain outside during the afternoon and night services.

County Attorney G. S. Swanson and P. J. Walters each furnished an automobile to bring to the Sunday afternoon services members of the men's evangelistic teams from the Methodist and Baptist churches of Brainerd. Mr. Swanson made an interesting twenty minute address as also did Rev. Elbert E. Satterlee, pastor of the Methodist church of Brainerd who was present.

Evangelist Martin pronounced the Nokay revival the best he has held for many months. Rev. Lorenzo Johnson, Methodist pastor at Cutler who has a regular preaching appointment at Nokay, rendered assistance during the revival.

The following members of the Brainerd men's evangelistic teams were present and spoke at the Sunday afternoon services: George Tracy, president of the Baptist team and his coworkers John Vanderwerker, Delos Turner and L. O. Kelsven; D. T. Lawrence, president of the Methodist team and his coworkers, G. N. Grant and J. H. Noble. Rev. E. E. Satterlee also accompanied them.

KILLING WITH THE COLD STEEL

Is "Too Revolting" But With the Gun, that is a Different Thing. According to a Lieutenant

ONE INSIDE INTO WAR METHODS

Men Are Killed Rather than Be Bothered With Them if They are Mad Prisoners

Herbert Corey, writing from Antwerp under date of Oct. 1st:

"Never," said Hamerschlag, the Belgian, "never could I learn to kill a man with the steel. It is too revolting."

Those sitting about the table in Criterium cafe nodded their heads understandingly. It was quite too revolting, they all agreed. One cried so when one died. And the blood—and the resistance of the warm, firm flesh to the bayonet.

"Now," said Hamerschlag, "the gun—it is clean."

All agreed that the gun is clean. One killed at a distance, is it not? One was spared the unpleasant details of his victim's death. It is not often that one observed the victim even thresh about in his death agony. And, of course, the barking gun drowned the cries. The short, round-faced, strongly built private sitting by Hamerschlag's side assumed a certain air of superior knowledge.

"It is so at first, of course," said he, "One regrets to kill one's first man. One almost hesitates. But afterward—I cannot explain the feeling that possesses one."

"Nevertheless," said Hamerschlag, after a thoughtful interval, "I prefer the gun. It is clean."

Hamerschlag is the lieutenant in charge of one of the Belgian motor mitrailleuses. The private was one of the three men who accompany him upon his lethal raids. They had been out all day, as they were almost every day.

If the German has taught the world the value of motor transport, the Belgian has added the lesson of the armored scout. It has darkened some thousands of German homes.

The men were sitting in a stall of the Criterium, that cafe to which M. Escottier, the king of chefs sends an occasional menu, in the full confidence that justice will be done it in M. Keller's kitchen. Outside the streets were dark as the inside of a chimney. Not one ray of light escaped through the Criterium's blinds. The doors were locked, for it was almost 10 o'clock. M. Keller indicated that even his patriotic fervor was no proof against fear of the police.

It had been rather unsatisfactory it appears. The most noteworthy incident was that which led to the discussion quoted above. Rounding a corner, the road soft, their motor noiseless, they had come upon a single German scout. Through some absolutely inexplicable folly he had laid down his musket, and the silent motor slid between him and his weapon. "We do not take prisoners," said Hamerschlag. "We cannot be bothered with them. We could not let him go to give the alarm, and a shot might have brought the German horns buzzing about our ears."

"So it has fallen to Jakel, the private, to put an end to this German. In his panic the man had run straight down the road. Hearing the motor humming behind him he had turned and thrown up his hands. He was hardly 20," Hamerschlag said. "There was a soft brown down upon his cheeks. He had begged piteously in German."

"But what could we do?" asked Hamerschlag. "It was sad, but we were helpless."

"I had rather he had fought," said Jakel.

Antwerp has perhaps a score of these motor mitrailleuses. Some few of them are armored, but for the most part they are fast passenger cars in which a mitrailleuse has been strongly bolted. Always a stout plate of steel takes the place of the usual windshield. Peepholes are cut in it, so that upon occasion the driver may crouch down under its protection. Every morning some of them run out into the country on scouting expeditions. That afternoon one finds the cars standing in the street in front of a cafe. The four men of the crew loil sideways in the seats, retelling the day's adventures to an admiring group.

"Once we were almost caught," said Hamerschlag. "We ran past a clump of trees, suspecting nothing. Then, ahead, we saw the Germans filing into the road from behind some bushes. We turned the car, and from the trees we had passed other Germans ran into the road. It was quite filled with them."

There was but thing to do. The second man in the forward compartment seized the wheel firmly, that he might hold the car in the road if the driver was shot. The second man in the gunner's compartment crouched at Hamerschlag's feet, to be protected from bullets. Hamerschlag gave the word:

"Give her all she's got!"

The driver threw open the cut out and turned on all his juice. Fortunately, there was room in which to get up to racing speed. Bullets hummed past their ears from behind. The mitrailleuse cracked over the driver's head upon the Germans in the road ahead. They were firing too. A dozen fresh splashes of lead upon the car told that night of the relative accuracy of their aim. But not a man in the car was hurt. Hamerschlag thinks the Germans were pardonably nervous, the circumstances being considered. But they held their ground.

"The fools," said Jakel. "We tore right through them. The jolt when the car hit them almost threw me at their feet."

Hamerschlag doesn't like that sort of an affair. He is of a refined, almost of an aesthetic temperament, is Hamerschlag. He likes to do his killing in an impersonal sort of way. The inevitably messy details of a hand-to-hand conflict revolt him.

"In the afternoon," said he, "we caught a patrol of four Uhlans on a level stretch of road, as we came over a hill which was masked in trees. They had not a shelter as big as an umbrella. The range was about 500 yards. I think I am best at about 500 yards. At a greater distance I persistently overshoot."

There is more cancer in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced enemies, and by constantly failure to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven cancer to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. J. A. Winthers' Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 1 drop to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. ## STRIPPED AND DRAGGED

The Associated Press tells how the German press has been glutted with accounts of Belgian atrocities committed upon defenseless Germans at Louvain and Antwerp. But of these the New York editions of the London papers take no notice. A gentleman acting for a large German firm in Antwerp makes affidavit that he saw the German barmaids in Antwerp stripped by the mob and dragged through the streets by the hair. He also testifies that in making his escape from the city he saw the body of a German woman in a public place. She had been hacked to death, the Belgian viragoes were kicking her lifeless form and spitting in her face. German laborers escaping from Antwerp were found crucified by the way side. In many places German soldier boys were found with their arms tied and their eyes cut out of their sockets. But why dwell on these horrors!

The Belgians have been equalling the Cossacks in inhuman cruelty. It will stagger humanity to know the truth. But the truth must be offset. So the Germans must be made to appear equally barbarous. To this end the testimony of milk maids and strumpets, hoboes and irresponsible vagrants are quoted as authorities. Premier Asquith hasn't heard of any such outrages. American newspapermen deny charges over their signatures. Authoritative French sources say are ignorant of them. Let the reader draw his own conclusion.

Little or no responsibility is attached to the stories of German brutalities and anyone with malice can twist the truth or make a justifiable case against the soldiers of the Fatherland. Englishmen themselves are protesting against the campaign that the fostered, protesting the publishing of statements from anonymous sources. If these charges are false, the allies "cause" would be irreparably injured by such an insult to the Germany army; if true, God and man will demand justice. Let citizens of neutral countries be appointed to investigate these charges under oath.

AMENDMENT NO. 3

Anna E. Sheffield, of International Falls, chairman of parks and highway committee of the State Federation of Woman's clubs, writes the following letter to the different clubs of the state regarding amendment No. 3, to be voted on November 3d:

This is a matter of business that concerns you and me for humanity's sake. It also concerns us because the State Federation have made it a part of their business to see that Amendment No. 3 is passed at the general election, November 3rd. This amendment, if passed, provides a way whereby the state legislature can provide protection for its forests and people from the proceeds derived from the sale of state land and timber, thus putting the state land in a self-supporting condition and doing away with a yearly appropriation from the general revenue fund of the state.

These appropriations were usually of the nature of locking the door after the horse had been stolen for they paid for damages done through lack of protection.

This amendment enables the legislature to grant the protection needed without extra cost to you and me and will save many dollars worth of timber every year beside much loss of life.

Amendment No. 3 simply puts this power into the hands of the legislature to appropriate from state land funds—for a short while. It does not grant any appropriation. It will save life. It will save timber. It will save taxes.

The reason the federation is interested is because it will alleviate the troubles of countless women and children. The settlers are trying to make homes for themselves. They are well educated people seeking to advance their own interests and the interests of the state. Some are many miles from the railroad, also many miles from navigable waters and in their ordinary daily life they must carry their necessary provisions in and out on their backs. If sickness comes, the doctor must either travel many miles on foot or the patient must be carried out on stretchers on the men's shoulders. If death comes, coffins must be brought in on men's shoulders or made by the neighbors, and the neighbors often fill the place of both minister and undertaker, performing the last sad rites.

Of these things you hear little complaint, but when dry years come and fires begin, when there are no fire breaks to stop the ground fires and no roads where one can travel fast enough to even try to escape the regular forest fire, life becomes very hard and insecure. But what could the settler do when the land all about him belongs to the state? What could the county do when the majority of the land is the state's land and pays no taxes? And what can the legislature do when they have no authority to protect even their own holdings?

They now ask help of the people, and we ask help of you to passing this amendment. (Will you not get your clubs to give one day in October to the consideration of the necessities of this case, and get each member to secure at least one vote in favor of the passage of this measure?)

Lower Taxes and the 9th Amendment
The adoption of the 9th amendment, providing for state forests, will lower our taxes. The amendment will increase our school fund and this will decrease our school tax. It will also reduce local as well as state taxes by making many acres taxable property which now pay but little revenue.

In addition to the immense amounts of farm land in Minnesota, there are also areas of land which will never be profitable for the raising of farm crops. Most of these lands either have been or are still covered with forests. Under our present method of cutting, no attempts are made to perpetuate the forest crop. But the 9th amendment will authorize the state to manage the state forest lands according to forestry principles. By not permitting the cutting of trees under a certain dimension, and by cutting in times of favorable seed years, the forests will be left in shape to reproduce themselves.

State lands which otherwise will become unproductive are kept, by means of the 9th amendment, in forest crops. With the good example set by the state, private corporations will follow suit, and we shall see the time when the non-tillable lands in this state will be producing timber as a permanent crop.

Untillable lands producing timber will pay a big revenue which will reduce the taxes on other land.

The ninth amendment is a cornerstone for a policy of this kind. It stands for good business. Not to vote at all is to vote against it. Remember this Nov. 3rd.

Hope is the power of conceiving the best in the presence of the worst, the power of living in the light of the new morning before the first ray of the dawn appears. Hope is the power of living in the iron age, while we are still in the stone age and of living in the golden age while we are still in the iron age. Hope is just the power of living a little in front—that is to say, hope is the capacity of living in the ideal.—J. H. Jowett.

Aliens Must Leave.

London, Oct. 21.—The chief constable of Brighton has ordered all German and Austrian subjects to leave that town within a few days. No exceptions will be made. Brighton has a large colony of foreigners and many of the hotels there either are owned by foreigners or their staffs are made up of them. Numerous Germans who were discharged from the London hotels last week have moved to the south coast resort.

W. T. Hutchens, Nicholson, Ga., had a severe attack of rheumatism. His feet, ankles and joints were swollen, and moving about was very painful. He was certainly in a bad way when he started to take Foley Kidney Pills. He says, "Just a few doses made me feel better, and now my pains and rheumatism are all gone and now my pains and rheumatism are all gone and I sleep all night long." H. P. Dunn, druggist.—Adv.

STRIPPED AND DRAGGED

The Associated Press tells how the German press has been glutted with accounts of Belgian atrocities committed upon defenseless Germans at Louvain and Antwerp. But of these the New York editions of the London papers take no notice. A gentleman acting for a large German firm in Antwerp makes affidavit that he saw the German barmaids in Antwerp stripped by the mob and dragged through the streets by the hair. He also testifies that in making his escape from the city he saw the body of a German woman in a public place. She had been backed to death, the Belgian viragoes were kicking her lifeless form and spitting in her face. German laborers escaping from Antwerp were found crucified by the way side. In many places German soldier boys were found with their arms tied and their eyes cut out of their sockets. But why dwell on these horrors!

The Belgians have been equalling the Cossacks in inhuman cruelty. It will stagger humanity to know the truth. But the truth must be offset. So the Germans must be made to appear equally barbarous. To this end the testimony of milk maids and strumpets, hoboes and irresponsible vagrants are quoted as authorities. Premier Asquith hasn't heard of any such outrages. American newspapermen deny charges over their signatures. Authoritative French sources say are ignorant of them. Let the reader draw his own conclusion.

Little or no responsibility is attached to the stories of German brutality and anyone with malice can twist the truth or make a justifiable case against the soldiers of the Fatherland. Englishmen themselves are protesting against the campaign that the fostered, protesting the publishing of statements from anonymous sources. If these charges are false, the allies "cause" would be irreparably injured by such an insult to the German army; if true, God and man will demand justice. Let citizens of neutral countries be appointed to investigate these charges under oath.

AMENDMENT NO. 3

Anna E. Shekand, of International Falls, chairman of parks and highway committee of the State Federation of Woman's clubs, writes the following letter to the different clubs of the state regarding amendment No. 3, to be voted on November 3d:

This is a matter of business that concerns you and me for humanity's sake. It also concerns us because the State Federation have made it a part of their business to see that amendment No. 3 is passed at the general election, November 3d. This amendment, if passed, provides a way whereby the state legislature can provide protection for its forests and people from the proceeds derived from the sale of state land and timber, thus putting the state land in a self-supporting condition and doing away with a yearly appropriation from the general revenue fund of the state.

These appropriations were usually of the nature of locking the door after the horse had been stolen for they paid for damages done through lack of protection.

This amendment enables the legislature to grant the protection needed without extra cost to you and me and will save many dollars worth of timber every year beside much loss of life.

Amendment No. 3 simply puts this power into the hands of the legislature to appropriate from state land funds—for a short while. It does not grant any appropriation. It will save life.

It will save timber.

It will save taxes.

The reason the federation is interested is because it will alleviate the troubles of countless women and children.

The settlers are trying to make homes for themselves. They are well educated people seeking to advance their own interests and the interests of the state. Some are many miles from the railroad, also many miles from navigable waters and in their ordinary daily life they must carry their necessary provisions in and out on their backs. If sickness comes, the doctor must either travel many miles on foot or the patient must be carried out on stretchers on the men's shoulders. If death comes, coffins must be brought in on men's shoulders or made by the neighbors, and the neighbors often fill the place of both minister and undertaker, performing the last sad rites.

Of these things you hear little complaint, but when dry years come and fires begin, when there are no fire breaks to stop the ground fires and no roads where one can travel fast enough to even try to escape the regular forest fire, life becomes very hard and insecure.

But what could the settler do when the land all about him belongs to the state? What could the county do when the majority of the land is the state's land and pays no taxes? And what can the legislature do when they have no authority to protect even their own holdings?

They now ask help of the people, and we ask help of you in passing this amendment. Will you not get your clubs to give one day in October to the consideration of the necessities of this case, and get each member to secure at least one vote in favor of the passage of this measure?

Lower Taxes and the 9th Amendment

The adoption of the 9th amendment, providing for state forests, will lower our taxes. The amendment will increase our school fund and this will decrease our school tax. It will also reduce local as well as state taxes by making many acres taxable property which now pay but little revenue.

In addition to the immense amounts of farm land in Minnesota, there are also areas of land which will never be profitable for the raising of farm crops. Most of these lands either have been or are still covered with forests. Under our present method of cutting, no attempts are made to perpetuate the forest crop. But the 9th amendment will authorize the state to manage the state forest lands according to forestry principles. By not permitting the cutting of trees under a certain dimension, and by cutting in times of favorable seed years, the forests will be left in shape to reproduce themselves.

State lands which otherwise will become unproductive are kept, by means of the 9th amendment, in forest crops. With the good example set by the state, private corporations will follow suit, and we shall see the time when the non-tillable lands in this state will be producing timber as a permanent crop.

Untillable lands producing timber will pay a big revenue which will reduce the taxes on other land.

The ninth amendment is a cornerstone for a policy of this kind. It stands for good business. Not to vote at all is to vote against it. Remember this Nov. 3rd.

WOODMEN BANQUET A GREAT SUCCESS

Six Hundred Diners Listen to Splendid Addresses and Musical Program at Gardner Hall

JOHN L. SUNDEAN SPEAKS

The Peace Jubilee Banquet Marks a Red Letter Date in the History of Local Woodcraft

The "Peace Jubilee" banquet, given by the Modern Woodmen of America, Camp No. 2337, on Tuesday evening, marks a red letter date in the history of local woodcraft.

Six hundred diners discussed a fine turkey dinner, and listened to a splendid program of speeches and musical numbers. The hall was made a scene of beauty. Five long tables ran the length of the hall and there were seated the Woodmen and their wives and invited friends. Each Woodman had the privilege of inviting a friend eligible to membership.

The rostrum at the end of the hall was nicely decorated with the Woodmen colors. The archway designed by Herman Hill, bore the letters M. W. of A. Swinging from its center was the monogram M. W. A., and two axes crossed, designed by Geo. Putz.

Musical was discoursed by the Blue Ribbon orchestra, and dancing followed the banquet. W. A. M. Johnston was the chairman of the general committee and associated with him on this committee were S. R. Adair, Erick Kronberg, A. J. Starritt, A. K. Luken, C. H. Mills, G. S. Swanson, Warren Campbell, George Gendron, A. L. Hoffman and Richard Ilse. This committee and the various sub-committees did their work well.

The general chairman, W. A. M. Johnston, announced the invocation by Rev. G. P. Sheridan and all heads were bowed as he spoke. Then followed the superb turkey dinner, cooked and served as only Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors can. That dinner was enough to put anyone in a good frame of mind and at the opportune time Rev. Sheridan, the toastmaster, made his introductory address.

"This banquet," said Rev. Sheridan, "symbolizes the declaring of peace and the burying of the hatchet. It is a 'Peace Jubilee' banquet." He mentioned it was a meeting to also get back in the folds of Woodcraft any deserters. Those on the fence should be swung about and made to fall one way or another. He paid a high tribute to the Modern Woodmen of America order.

Morris Folsom gave a fine piano solo and responded with an encore. The toastmaster announced that C. A. Krech had been asked to speak, thus taking the place of a neighbor not able to respond. Mr. Krech was announced as the man who could sing and tell a story and he was assigned the subject "The Merry-Go-Round of Woodcraft."

Mr. Krech said he was not prepared to make a big speech, but he would tell a little story and it was a good one about a minister and a man who listened to the sermon. "Fear Not, the Comforter Cometh" was the text and when the listener was asked to repeat the text he said, "Don't be afraid. He will bring the quilt." Mr. Krech brought down the house with his story.

L. T. Noggle, clerk in the local Woodmen lodge and representative of the sixth congressional district to the national convention, who worked to bring back the old rates, was the next speaker. He told how his mother induced him to join the lodge. He praised the order which gave insurance at actual cost and said it was the largest and the best. It was the obligation of every man to his family to carry as much insurance as he could and the Modern Woodmen offered insurance protection of the best kind.

The Imperial quartet composed of John M. Bye, George Berggreen, Ernest R. Lind and Wm. E. Anderson sang. Their accompaniment was played by Miss Jennie Wilson.

Rev. Sheridan introduced the next speaker as his colleague in directing the destinies of the Chamber of Commerce and called on the secretary, C. E. Hansing. Mr. Hansing mentioned joining the order in Minneapolis and receiving the full initiation and being made the goat of the class. He praised fraternalism.

"The next speaker," said Rev. Sheridan, "is an honorary doctor of letters. We know him best as John. He is sometimes made the goat, but survives it." He called on John A. Hoffbauer.

Mr. Hoffbauer said: "My time is usually spent in taking down the remarks of others, so that it is a novelty to spring some of my own. I have been asked to make an extemporaneous speech, but got a tip a minute ago and so prepared myself. If I could only talk as well as I have eaten this evening, I would be some orator.

"The Brainerd Woodmen never do things by halves. They believe in accomplishing big things. When they set out to have a 'Peace Jubilee' banquet commemorating the visit of the state manager, John L. Sundean, of Minneapolis, they have one which excels anything in the history of the local order or the entire jurisdiction, for that matter. When they decide on a festal board, they get one a block long, capable of seating 600.

The Woodmen have the largest membership of any fraternal insurance society. The Woodmen believe in superlatives. They are among the warmest hearted, most generous and most fraternal people. 'Do good to your neighbor' is the motto.

We believe we have the best state manager in the jurisdiction. It means something to be a Woodman and I am glad to be a Woodman. I call your attention to our toastmaster. There's good timber. Let's make a Woodman out of him.

I never miss a banquet of the Woodmen, for the Woodmen believe in the good things of the earth and the fullness thereof. May they ever live and prosper. You have asked me to speak of the active member. Here's to the active member, the personification of hustle and business, the man who is making Woodcraft hum in Minnesota. You ask his name? It is our loyal, our generous, our own neighbor, John L. Sundean.

Mr. Sundean was the leader of the fight against the high rates and after securing a settlement of the troubles of the order to the satisfaction of the members, he was appointed state deputy and this elaborate affair in Brainerd tonight is considered indicative of the big plan on which this great order is to be promoted in Minnesota. I am glad and I guess I voice the sentiments of every person present when I say we are all glad to honor our state manager and this reception surely emphasizes the esteem in which we hold him."

W. A. M. Johnston quickly followed the suggestion made by the speaker and delivered an application to join the order to Rev. Sheridan, the toastmaster.

Christian Jensen, accompanied by Mrs. W. A. M. Johnston on the piano, played "The Son of the Puzia," by Keler Bela and the "Berceuse" from Jocelyn by B. Godard, and was heartily applauded.

"Woodcraft in the Woods" was assigned to Judge A. R. Holman, of Pequot. He spoke of the little communities where the school house was followed by the Woodmen camp and where the lodge room was a power for good to the neighborhood. He praised the banquet and the get-together spirit shown. "For a number of years past, the Woodmen have labored in a dense fog," said the speaker, "but now, happily, it is disappearing and the sun of peace and harmony is driving the vapors away."

The Blue Ribbon orchestra played a selection.

The next speaker was introduced as the "Father of Insurgency." Amid a pandemonium of applause, John L. Sundean, the state manager, faced the large audience, and spoke on the subject assigned, "Revelations."

"This occasion itself is a revelation to me," said Mr. Sundean. "I heard about Brainerd before, but I never knew there were so many people here until tonight. Another revelation to me is the splendid program presented. It has proved a revelation in oratory and music.

I had an idea the people of Brainerd could do nothing but pitch." Mr. Sundean praised the work of the arrangements committee headed by W. A. M. Johnston. He congratulated him and his assistants for the success of their endeavors. He praised the decorations.

Mr. Sundean predicted for Brainerd a great future. The banquet given by the Woodmen would be emulated in future by banquets given by Brainerd commercial organizations.

Mr. Sundean declared that the test of sound insurance is not the amount of the assessment collected, but what is done with the money collected. If one order collects 75 cents each month at age 25 while another col-

MAY HAVE MET WITH FOUL PLAY

The Dispatch is in receipt of a query from Minneapolis to the effect that a couple was murdered near St. Louis believed to be Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Washam.

Letters found on them were from Mary and Charles Washam, of Brainerd, says the Minneapolis Journal.

Inquiry reveals the fact that two parties of that name were in the city in 1910 and were on their way to Jamestown, N. D.

Any one having any knowledge of the family will be of assistance in permitting the Dispatch and the Journal to notify relatives of the death of the two people found in St. Louis.

fects 50 cents. It does not follow that the 75 cents order is sounder financially because it may use part of the 75 cents for running expenses and it may have a less fortunate selection of risks.

"In the M. W. of A.," said the speaker, "no part of the assessment is used for running expenses and the order has been so careful in selecting its risks that though the rates were always low and assessments were skipped as many as four times a year, still the order now has assets of $15,000,000 and only two high rate orders have more assets."

Mr. Sundean, to make plain his point concerning what is done with the money societies collect compared the M. W. A. with other reputable and popular orders and quoted the insurance commissioner's report to show that on every dollar collected the Yeomen use 28 cents for expenses, the Modern Brotherhood 22 cents, the Woodmen of the World 17 cents, but the M. W. of A. only use 9 cents on each dollar collected for expenses.

John L. Sundean

Mr. Sundean, expressing friendliness to old-line insurance, still maintains that its expense feature is too great. He quoted insurance reports to show that 40 old line companies pay $20,000,000 a year more for expenses than for mortality claims and showing that Minnesota pays $6,000,000 a year more to the old-liners than they pay back.

He declared that the profit on lap-sations is enormous. The general record is 12 lap-sations for one death and in the M. W. of A., where all that is paid by those who lapse goes into the benefit fund for widows and orphans and certain profit is assured to all who keep up their membership.

Mr. Sundean praised the economy shown by the Woodmen. Another point he brought out was that after three years of warfare on the old rates a surplus, nevertheless, of $130,000 a month had been accumulated.

He pleaded for an energetic campaign for new members in Brainerd and hoped Brainerd camp would win the state pennant for the largest gain this year. In conclusion he thanked the members for their hospitality. He assured them that the banquet held was one of the largest ever held in the entire jurisdiction of the Woodmen.

"Let's have the town that makes them play 12 innings to win, get the state banner for big membership and then try to keep it," was his parting injunction. Hearty applause punctuated his address and its conclusion.

Mrs. Nels Johnson sang a pleasing vocal solo, her accompaniment being played by Miss Jennie Wilson.

Edwin Harris Bergh and Mrs. W. A. M. Johnston played a violin and piano duet, a Phantasia from Il Trovatore by Verdi, and pleased the large audience.

G. S. Swanson sang "In the Garden of My Heart," the piano accompaniment being played by his sister, Miss Hannah Swanson. This completed the program and dancing followed as soon as chairs and tables were cleared away.

CHESTER D. TRIPP TELLS HIS STORY

Former President of Rogers, Brown Ore Co. Denies Having Made Partnership Agreement

WITH FORMER SUPT. H. J. KRUSE

Case Being Heard in District Court in Duluth—Mr. Tripp is the First Witness Called

A case of interest to Brainerd and Cuyuna range people, as the parties are well known, is that of H. J. Kruse vs Chester D. Tripp, now being tried in the district court in Duluth and the Duluth Herald has this to say of the litigation now being carried on: "Chester D. Tripp, former president and general manager of the Rogers, Brown Ore company with headquarters at Chicago, who is defendant in an action now on trial in district court in which H. J. Kruse is seeking to enforce an alleged partnership agreement between them with reference to the division of royalties derived from the operation of Armour No. 2 mine at Crosby, was on the stand for the purpose of cross-examination under the statute during the morning session of the trial yesterday.

Mr. Tripp has been the only witness who has been called so far in the case. Mr. Kruse, plaintiff in the action, alleges that he owned the surface rights to certain mineral land near Armour No. 2 mine, which he conveyed to Mr. Tripp under an agreement that he was to share equally with the defendant in any profit which might be derived from a subsequent sale of the surface rights to lease holders of the mine. Mr. Kruse was formerly in the employ of Mr. Tripp as mine superintendent on the Cuyuna range.

Mr. Tripp's claim is that at no time did he enter into any partnership agreement with Mr. Kruse whereby they were to share equally or otherwise in the deal. His story of the facts in the case as developed by the evidence is about as follows:

Sometime prior to June, 1910, the fee to the land and material was owned by the Pine Tree Manufacturing company, a Weyerhaeuser subsidiary, which conveyed the property to one Jacobson, the company reserving the mineral rights to itself.

About June 1, 1910, one Magoffin, who either had a contract for the purchase of Jacobson's interest or represented Jacobson as an agent, offered to sell the land to Tripp for $1,650.

On June 16, 1910, Mr. Tripp alleges he learned that he could make a sale of the Jacobson interest to the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company for $80 an acre or $6,400. At that time, he claims, he instructed Mr. Kruse to take the title in his name by purchasing it from Magoffin, and forward the deed to the Soo railroad officials. Mr. Tripp claims that for this Mr. Kruse was paid a certain interest in the net difference between the purchase price to be paid Jacobson and the amount to be received from the railway company.

Subsequently, Mr. Tripp claims, Mr. Kruse closed up the transaction and completed the purchase. Mr. Tripp claims that Mr. Kruse received a deed from Magoffin who had theretofore received a deed of conveyance from Jacobson and that he settled with Mr. Kruse on the basis which had been agreed upon.

After the deal had been closed, Mr. Tripp claims, he later repurchased a portion of the property from the Soo railroad and subsequently entered into a contract with the Pine Tree Manufacturing company, owners of the ore under the property, whereby he was to receive a one-fifth interest in the royalties which should be derived from the use of the land.

It is expected that the trial will last several days and that several prominent mining men will be called

VAST AMOUNT FREE FROM TAX
$200,000,000 Escapes Taxation in State, Being Immune Under the Law that Regulates

That there is in Minnesota more than $200,000,000 worth of property exempt from taxation is shown by figures given out today by the state tax commission. This is the first time that the exemptions have been compiled. The assessed value of this would amount to $67,120,000.

Hennepin county leads in the state with exempt property worth $45,520,000, whose assessed value would be $17,294,000.

The assessed value of immune property in Minneapolis alone would be $16,827,000. Tabulation of the principal items shows that the exemption of churches amounts to more than that of schools, the former's assessed value being $2,525,000 and the latter $1,889,000. Cemeteries total $378,000 and a number of institutions, including the University of Minnesota, total $11,284,000.

The assessed value of St. Paul exemptions is $12,900,000, whose chief items are: Churches, $3,250,000; schools, $1,545,000; cemeteries, $109,000; and miscellaneous, including both the new and old capitols $6,179,000.

Six Hundred Diners Listen to Splendid Addresses and Musical Program at Gardner Hall

JOHN L. SUNDEAN SPEAKS

The Peace Jubilee Banquet Marks a Red Letter Date in the History of Local Woodcraft

The "Peace Jubilee" banquet, given by the Modern Woodmen of America, Camp No. 2337, on Tuesday evening, marks a red letter date in the history of local woodcraft.

Six hundred diners discussed a fine turkey dinner, and listened to a splendid program of speeches and musical numbers. The hall was made a scene of beauty. Five long tables ran the length of the hall and there were seated the Woodmen and their wives and invited friends. Each Woodman had the privilege of inviting a friend eligible to membership.

The rostrum at the end of the hall was nicely decorated with the Woodmen colors. The archway designed by Herman Hill, bore the letters M. W. of A. Swinging from its center was the monogram M. W. A., and two axes crossed, designed by Geo. Putz.

Music was discoursed by the Blue Ribbon orchestra, and dancing followed the banquet. W. A. M. Johnston was the chairman of the general committee and associated with him on this committee were S. R. Adair, Erick Kronberg, A. J. Starritt, A. K. Luken, C. H. Mills, G. S. Swanson, Warren Campbell, George Gendron, A. L. Hoffman and Richard Ilse. This committee and the various sub-committees did their work well.

The general chairman, W. A. M. Johnston, announced the invocation by Rev. G. P. Sheridan and all heads were bowed as he spoke. Then followed the superb turkey dinner, cooked and served as only Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors can. That dinner was enough to put anyone in a good frame of mind and at the opportune time Rev. Sheridan, the toastmaster, made his introductory address.

"This banquet," said Rev. Sheridan, "symbolizes the declaring of peace and the burying of the hatchet. It is a 'Peace Jubilee' banquet." He mentioned it was a meeting to also get back in the folds of Woodcraft any deserters. Those on the fence should be swung about and made to fall one way or another. He paid a high tribute to the Modern Woodmen of America order.

Morris Folsom gave a fine piano solo and responded with an encore.

The toastmaster announced that C. A. Krech had been asked to speak, thus taking the place of a neighbor not able to respond. Mr. Krech was announced as the man who could sing and tell a story and he was assigned the subject "The Merry-Go-Round of Woodcraft."

Mr. Krech said he was not prepared to make a big speech, but he would tell a little story and it was a good one about a minister and a man who listened to the sermon. "Fear Not, the Comforter Cometh" was the text and when the listener was asked to repeat the text he said, "Don't be afraid. He will bring the quilt." Mr. Krech brought down the house with his story.

L. T. Noggle, clerk in the local Woodmen lodge and representative of the sixth congressional district to the national convention, who worked to bring back the old rates, was the next speaker. He told how his mother induced him to join the lodge. He praised the order which gave insurance at actual cost and said it was the largest and the best. It was the obligation of every man to his family to carry as much insurance as he could and the Modern Woodmen offered insurance protection of the best kind.

The Imperial quartet composed of John M. Pye, George Berggreen, Ernest R. Lind and Wm. E. Anderson sang. Their accompaniment was played by Miss Jennie Wilson.

Rev. Sheridan introduced the next speaker as his colleague in directing the destinies of the Chamber of Commerce and called on the secretary, C. E. Hansing. Mr. Hansing mentioned joining the order in Minneapolis and receiving the full initiation and being made the goat of the class. He praised fraternalism.

"The next speaker," said Rev. Sheridan, "is an honorary doctor of letters. We know him best as John. He is sometimes made the goat, but survives it." He called on John A. Hoffbauer.

Mr. Hoffbauer said: "My time is usually spent in taking down the remarks of others, so that it is a novelty to spring some of my own. I have been asked to make an extem-

MAN RUN OVER MEETS DEATH

Special to The Dispatch:—

poraneous speech, but got a tip a minute ago and so prepared myself. If I could only talk as well as I have eaten this evening, I would be some orator.

"The Brainerd Woodmen never do things by halves. They believe in accomplishing big things. When they set out to have a 'Peace Jubilee' banquet commemorating the visit of the state manager, John L. Sundean, of Minneapolis, they have one which excels anything in the history of the local order or the entire jurisdiction, for that matter. When they decide on a festival board, they get one a block long, capable of seating 600.

The Woodmen have the largest membership of any fraternal insurance society. The Woodmen believe in superlatives. They are among the warmest hearted, most generous and most fraternal people. 'Do good to your neighbor' is the motto.

We believe we have the best state manager in the jurisdiction. It means something to be a Woodman and I am glad to be a Woodman. I call your attention to our toastmaster. There's good timber. Let's make a Woodman out of him.

I never miss a banquet of the Woodmen, for the Woodmen believe in the good things of the earth and the fullness thereof. May they ever live and prosper. You have asked me to speak of the active member. Here's to the active member, the personification of hustle and business, the man who is making Woodcraft hum in Minnesota. You ask his name? It is our loyal, our generous, our own neighbor, John L. Sundean.

Mr. Sundean was the leader of the fight against the high rates and after securing a settlement of the troubles of the order to the satisfaction of the members, he was appointed state deputy and this elaborate affair in Brainerd tonight is considered indicative of the big plan on which this great order is to be promoted in Minnesota. I am glad and I guess I voice the sentiments of every person present when I say we are all glad to honor our state manager and this reception surely emphasizes the esteem in which we hold him."

W. A. M. Johnston quickly followed the suggestion made by the speaker and delivered an application to join the order to Rev. Sheridan, the toastmaster.

Christian Jensen, accompanied by Mrs. W. A. M. Johnston on the piano, played "The Son of the Pustia," by Keler Bela and the "Berceuse" from Jocelyn by B. Godard, and was heartily applauded.

"Woodcraft in the Woods" was assigned to Judge A. R. Hophman, of Pequot. He spoke of the little communities where the school house was followed by the Woodmen camp and where the lodge room was a power for good to the neighborhood. He praised the banquet and the get-together spirit shown. "For a number of years past, the Woodmen have labored in a dense fog," said the speaker, "but now, happily, it is disappearing and the sun of peace and harmony is driving the vapors away."

The Blue Ribbon orchestra played a selection. The next speaker was introduced as the "Father of Insurgency." Amid a pandemonium of applause, John L. Sundean, the state manager, faced the large audience, and spoke on the subject assigned, "Revelations."

"This occasion itself is a revelation to me," said Mr. Sundean. "I heard about Brainerd before, but I never knew there were so many people here until tonight. Another revelation to me is the splendid program presented. It has proved a revelation in oratory and music.

I had an idea the people of Brainerd could do nothing but pitch." Mr. Sundean praised the work of the arrangements committee headed by W. A. M. Johnston. He congratulated him and his assistants for the success of their endeavors. He praised the decorations.

Mr. Sundean predicted for Brainerd a great future. The banquet given by the Woodmen would be emulated in future by banquets given by Brainerd commercial organizations.

Mr. Sundean declared that the test of sound insurance is not the amount of the assessment collected, but what is done with the money collected. If one order collects 75 cents each month at age 25 while another col-

MAY HAVE MET WITH FOUL PLAY

The Dispatch is in receipt of a query from Minneapolis to the effect that a couple was murdered near St. Louis believed to be Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Washam.

Letters found on them were from Mary and Charles Washam, of Brainerd, says the Minneapolis Journal. Inquiry reveals the fact that two parties of that name were in the city in 1910 and were on their way to Jamestown, N. D.

Any one having any knowledge of the family will be of assistance in permitting the Dispatch and the Journal to notify relatives of the death of the two people found in St. Louis.

lects 50 cents. It does not follow that the 75 cents order is sounder financially because it may use part of the 75 cents for running expenses and it may have a less fortunate selection of risks.

"In the M. W. of A.," said the speaker, "no part of the assessment is used for running expenses and the order has been so careful in selecting its risks that though the rates were always low and assessments were skipped as many as four times a year, still the order now has assets of $15,000,000 and only two high rate orders have more assets."

Mr. Sundean, to make plain his point concerning what is done with the money societies collect compared the M. W. A. with other reputable and popular orders and quoted the insurance commissioner's report to show that on every dollar collected the Yeomen use 28 cents for expenses, the Modern Brotherhood 22 cents, the Woodmen of the World 17 cents, but the M. W. of A. only use 9 cents on each dollar collected for expenses.

John L. Sundean

Mr. Sundean, expressing friendliness to old-line insurance, still maintains that its expense feature is too great. He quoted insurance reports to show that 40 old line companies pay $20,000,000 a year more for expenses than for mortality claims and showing that Minnesota pays $6,000,000 a year more to the old-liners than they pay back.

He declared that the profit on lapsations is enormous. The general record is 12 lapsations for one death and in the M. W. of A., where all that is paid by those who lapse goes into the benefit fund for widows and orphans and certain profit is assured to all who keep up their membership.

Mr. Sundean praised the economy shown by the Woodmen. Another point he brought out was that after three years of warfare on the old rates a surplus, nevertheless, of $130,000 a month had been accumulated. He pleaded for an energetic campaign for new members in Brainerd and hoped Brainerd camp would win the state pennant for the largest gain this year. In conclusion he thanked the members for their hospitality. He assured them that the banquet held was one of the largest ever held in the entire jurisdiction of the Woodmen.

"Let's have the town that makes them play 12 innings to win, get the state banner for big membership and then try to keep it," was his parting injunction. Hearty applause punctuated his address and its conclusion.

Mrs. Nels Johnson sang a pleasing vocal solo, her accompaniment being played by Miss Jennie Wilson.

Edwin Harris Bergh and Mrs. W. A. M. Johnston played a violin and piano duet, a Phantasia from Il Trovatore by Verdi, and pleased the large audience.

G. S. Swanson sang "In the Garden of My Heart," the piano accompaniment being played by his sister, Miss Hannah Swanson. This completed the program and dancing followed as soon as chairs and tables were cleared away.

CHESTER D. TRIPP TELLS HIS STORY

Former President of Rogers, Brown Ore Co. Denies Having Made Partnership Agreement

WITH FORMER SUPT. H. J. KRUSE

Case Being Heard in District Court in Duluth—Mr. Tripp is the First Witness Called

A case of interest to Brainerd and Cuyuna range people, as the parties are well known, is that of H. J. Kruse vs. Chester D. Tripp, now being tried in the district court in Duluth and the Duluth Herald has this to say of the litigation now being carried on:

"Chester D. Tripp, former president and general manager of the Rogers, Brown Ore company with headquarters at Chicago, who is defendant in an action now on trial in district court in which H. J. Kruse is seeking to enforce an alleged partnership agreement between them with reference to the division of royalties derived from the operation of Armour No. 2 mine at Crosby, was on the stand for the purpose of cross-examination under the statute during the morning session of the trial yesterday.

Mr. Tripp has been the only witness who has been called so far in the case. Mr. Kruse, plaintiff in the action, alleges that he owned the surface rights to certain mineral land near Armour No. 2 mine, which he conveyed to Mr. Tripp under an agreement that he was to share equally with the defendant in any profit which might be derived from a subsequent sale of the surface rights to lease holders of the mine. Mr. Kruse was formerly in the employ of Mr. Tripp as mine superintendent on the Cuyuna range.

Mr. Tripp's claim is that at no time did he enter into any partnership agreement with Mr. Kruse whereby they were to share equally or otherwise in the deal. His story of the facts in the case as developed by the evidence is about as follows:

Sometime prior to June, 1910, the fee to the land and material was owned by the Pine Tree Manufacturing company, a Weyerhaeuser subsidiary, which conveyed the property to one Jacobson, the company reserving the mineral rights to itself.

About June 1, 1910, one Magoffin, who either had a contract for the purchase of Jacobson's interest or represented Jacobson as an agent, offered to sell the land to Tripp for $1,650.

On June 16, 1910, Mr. Tripp alleges he learned that he could make a sale of the Jacobson interest to the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company for $80 an acre or $6,400. At that time, he claims, he instructed Mr. Kruse to take the title in his name by purchasing it from Magoffin, and forward the deed to the Soo railroad officials. Mr. Tripp claims that for this Mr. Kruse was paid a certain interest in the net difference between the purchase price to be paid Jacobson and the amount to be received from the railway company.

Subsequently, Mr. Tripp claims, Mr. Kruse closed up the transaction and completed the purchase. Mr. Tripp claims that Mr. Kruse received a deed from Magoffin who had theretofore received a deed of conveyance from Jacobson and that he settled with Mr. Kruse on the basis which had been agreed upon.

After the deal had been closed, Mr. Tripp claims, he later repurchased a portion of the property from the Soo railroad and subsequently entered into a contract with the Pine Tree Manufacturing company, owners of the ore under the property, whereby he was to receive a one-fifth interest in the royalties which should be derived from the use of the land.

It is expected that the trial will last several days and that several prominent mining men will be called

VAST AMOUNT FREE FROM TAX

$200,000,000 Escapes Taxation in State, Being Immune Under the Law that Regulates

That there is in Minnesota more than $200,000,000 worth of property exempt from taxation is shown by figures given out today by the state tax commission. This is the first time that the exemptions have been compiled. The assessed value of this would amount to $67,120,000.

Hennepin county leads in the state with exempt property worth $45,520,000, whose assessed value would be $17,294,000.

The assessed value of immune property in Minneapolis alone would be $16,827,000. Tabulation of the principal items shows that the exemption of churches amounts to more than that of schools, the former's assessed value being $2,525,000 and the latter $1,889,000. Cemeteries total $378,000 and a number of institutions, including the University of Minnesota, total $11,284,000.

The assessed value of St. Paul exemptions is $12,900,000, whose chief items are: Churches, $3,250,000; schools, $1,545,000; cemeteries, $109,000; and miscellaneous, including both the new and old capitols $6,179,000.

HOW CHILDREN LEARN TO BUY

New Branch of New York's School Course Explained.

MODEL STORES INSTALLED.

Pupils Receive Practical Instruction of Value to Their Parents—White Aproned Teachers Show Them the Way to Be Successful Purchasers of Staple Commodities.

Model stores at which provisions are bought and sold have been opened in New York public schools for the instruction of school children.

The plan was adopted by the board of education at the suggestion of Chairman George W. Perkins of the mayor's food committee. It is hoped that the children will take many of the ideas learned in school home and thus not only become good marketers themselves, but impart the knowledge to their parents.

Most of the school principals have appropriated empty storerooms or large closets for the model stores. Shelves and counters are built close to the walls, and white aproned teachers, equipped with scales and ladies, instruct the children how to buy food staples intelligently.

Real Food Supply.

A large toy factory got a rush order for several thousand sets of toy stores. Small boxes are labeled tea, other boxes are marked salt, beans, peas, etc.

In a few schools real food commodities are traded in, and the scholars are told to watch the scales to see that purchases are sold at fair weights.

As part of the domestic science courses boys and girls are taken to nearby markets by teachers and given practical lessons in selecting vegetables and groceries.

Miss Mary R. Davis, principal of public school No. 1, outlined the new "food course" to a reporter.

Watch Quality and Scales.

"The children were very anxious to know if they were to have real money," she said. "We thought it best to prepare pieces of cardboard and wooden cylinders with money values marked on them.

"The little people are taught to comment upon the quality of the spaghetti, coffee or whatever they purchased and to be particularly careful that they receive fair weight.

"They are also given a good business training by doing all the book-keeping for the store. Of course they learn to make change.

"One of the butchers in Washington market sends us a note when he has an animal to cut up, and a party of children is sent down in care of a teacher. She explains different cuts and what each is worth.

"The model store is a new phase of the domestic science courses, which have been in operation in New York public schools for several years. The thing which makes it sure of success is that the children look upon the practical work of buying and selling more as a recreation than part of their regular studies."

The Poetic Omar.

To hold a place forever among that limited few who, like Lucretius and Epicurus, without rage and defiance, even without unbearing mirth, look deep into the tangled mysteries of things; to refuse credence to the absurd and allegiance to arrogant authority; sufficiently conscious of fallibility to be tolerant of all opinions; with a faith too wide for doctrine and a benevolence untrammelled by creed, too wise to be wholly poet and yet too purely poet to be implacably wise—

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Sporting Offer.

Some two hours later, that same evening, Mr. Alan Law, very much alive and, in spite of a complete new outfit of ready-made clothing, looking much more like himself than he had in a fortnight, issued forth from the Grand Central station, hailed a taxicab, and had himself conveyed to the Hotel Monolith.

But if he looked his proper self once more, it speedily was demonstrated that his wish was otherwise: for after learning from the room-clerk of the Monolith that a suite was being held in the name of Arthur Lawrence, that was the name Mr. Law inscribed on the register.

On the other hand, it was his true name that he gave to the person whom he called upon the telephone immediately after being shown to his rooms. But then he was speaking to his old friend and man of business, Mr. Digby.

Within another ten minutes this last was in conference with his employer:

"I think you must be out of your head," he insisted nervously, once their first greetings were over. "You might just as sensibly throw yourself from the top of the Metropolitan tower as come to New York while Trine lives and knows you're this side the water."

"Nonsense!" Alan laughed. "Remember this is New York—not the backwoods of Maine!"

Alan paused and smote his palm with a remorseful fist. "By the Eternal, I'm forgetting Barcus!"

"Barcus?"

"Chap whose boat I chartered in Portland—sheer luck on my part: he's one of the salt of the earth. First, something must be done for the boy. You've got influence of some sort in New Bedford, surely?"

Digby reflected: "Some. There's George Blaine, Justice of the peace—"

"The very man. Telegraph him in Barcus' interests immediately. And telegraph Barcus as well—send him a hundred for expenses, and tell him to join me here in New York as quick as he can!"

"Your friend's address?" Digby inquired, mildly ironic as he sat down at the desk and fumbled with the supply of stationery.

"New Bedford jail, of course!" Alan chuckled—but cut his laugh in two as something fluttered from the pack of envelopes which Digby had disturbed and fell to the floor between the two men.

Face up, it grinned sardonic mockery of Alan's confidence: it was a Trey of hearts.

With an ashen face and a trembling hand, Digby stooped to pick the damned thing up; but Alan was beforehand with him, and got his fingers first upon the card.

"Now will you believe?" Digby demanded huskily.

"In what? A simple coincidence?" Alan flouted. "Not I! Who knows I'm in New York—or that the Arthur Lawrence for whom your agent engaged these rooms was Alan Law. No, my friend: it's a bit too thick for me. Take my word for it, this is nothing more nor less than a souvenir of a poker-party held by yesterday's tenant of this suite."

"Perhaps—perhaps!" Digby assented, stroking tremulous lips. "But I'm afraid for you, my boy. Who knows that Trine's spies were not watching my man when he made this reservation? Who knows but that 'Arthur Lawrence' was too thin a disguise for Alan Law? I tell you, I'm frightened to the marrow of my old bones! Do me this favor at least, my boy: now that you've been warned, whether by accident or design—we won't argue that—do leave town—go incognito to some quiet place near by and wait there for the sailing of the next transatlantic steamer. Oh, surely you can't deny me this one wish of my fond old heart, my boy!"

With a gesture of unfeigned affection Alan dropped a hand on Digby's shoulder.

"There's nothing on earth I would not do for you," he said: "you've been a father and a mother to me ever since I can remember, even if we were separated, most of the time, by three thousand miles of salt water. But this thing—I can't do it, even for you. I can't do it even for myself. Ross Trine is here in New York, in the hands and at the mercy of her father and sister; and you may judge what their mercy will be when you learn all that she has done for me. I won't go and I can't go until I find her and take her with me. And that is final."

"Then," Digby struck in, grasping wildly at a straw of hope, "I have your word you'll go, providing I find and restore Rose to you?"

"You have my word to that, unquestionably. Bring Rose to me, and I'll gladly shake the dust of New York from my shoes, and never return till Trine is put away comfortably in his grave."

"It shall be done," Digby promised.

"It must!"

"You believe that?"

"In twelve hours Rose shall be restored to you."

"Will you make a book on it? I'll bet you something happens—and hope I lose into the bargain. If you believe you can carry out your promise, wire the White Star line to reserve the best available suite on the Oceanic, sailing tomorrow morning at ten—and make arrangements for a marriage before the boat sails."

"I'll go you," Digby agreed: "and if I fail, I forfeit the cost of the reservation. But about this marriage—"

He hesitated.

"You'll have to have a license in this state—and can't get one except by applying in person with your bride-to-be. There won't be time—"

"Then we'll marry in Jersey!" Alan insisted. "Dig up some clergyman over there, if you don't know one yourself—"

"Oh, I'm well acquainted with the very man!"

AN OSTRICH STOMACH

Bryan Swallows Tammany and Hammond Although Followers Cannot Account for it

Many of the original Bryan men in Minnesota cannot understand how William J. Bryan can bring himself to speak for W. S. Hammond.

"It seems that Bryan has to be regular now in spite of his feelings," said one of the Bryanites, "and, after endorsing the Tammany candidate in New York, he is forced to come to Minnesota and speak for our Minnesota Tammany," says the Minneapolis Journal.

No one expects Mr. Bryan to mention county option in his Minneapolis speech though that is the issue of the Lee-Hammond campaign. In 1910 Bryan bolted Dabham, the democratic candidate for governor of Nebraska, because Dabham was against county option and was supported by the liquor interests. Many times since then Bryan has spoken for county option, but he cannot do it in Minnesota without hurting the candidate of his party.

The Bryanites, already refuted, recalled the attack made by Bryan on Hammond, at the big banquet of Minnesota democrats, June 1, 1911, at the St. Paul auditorium. It was a spectacular occasion, and one where Mr. Hammond did not appear to the best advantage. Mr. Bryan had been attacking the democratic majority in the house, and the ways and means committee especially for placing a duty on raw wool in the tariff bill they had framed.

Mr. Hammond as a member of the ways and means committee defended its action in an interview when he arrived in St. Paul for the dinner. He said it was necessary as a revenue proposition to have some duty on raw wool.

Mr. Bryan arrived the same day and denounced the committee action in interviews. That evening was a dinner and the two men sat near each other at the speaker's table. Hammond spoke first and tried to evade discussion of the tariff matter, ignoring it in his speech and making a plea for democratic harmony.

"Talk about harmony," retorted Bryan in his speech, after he had roasted democratic "reactionaries" with Schedule "K", "you cannot have harmony under that kind of leadership, unless you betray party principles."

Bryan denounced the wool schedule as "the worst in the tariff law," and said that few farmers get any benefit from the duty on raw wool, though it places an enormous burden on the public.

The speech, was made directly at Hammond, who was very quiet and seemingly sullen afterward under his castigation. Few sought him after the banquet, while Bryan was the center of attraction and many congratulated him on his speech.

POLITICAL GAME IS OVERWORKED

Tons of Printed Matter Sent to the Voters.

OPEN TIME FOR CANDIDATES

Some Criticize Administration, While Others Uphold Every Act of Democrats—Vardaman's Suggestion That Salaries of Government Employees Be Held Up Is Not a Popular One.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Everybody recognizes it to be perfectly legitimate to play the political game at this season. Congress has been making the most of it, and those men who have been unable to make speeches in their districts have been making them in the Congressional Record. And how severely critical of the administration and what congress has done are the Republicans! On the other hand, how the Democrats praise the administration and commend the work of congress! After all, why not? It is all a part of the game. It is done every two years and will continue to be done as long as there is a congress.

The mails are fairly bursting with all this political palaver. Those congressmen who have been criticizing the newspapers and periodicals because they have a low rate of postage do not hesitate to send tons and tons of mail under frank, free of postage, to their constituents for the sole purpose of helping them to re-election.

Platform Repudiation.

One of the political campaign effusions which attracted more than ordinary interest was a symposium inserted by Congressman Roberts of Massachusetts, who gathered together all the criticisms of Democratic statesmen of the reputation of the Baltimore platform. First and last he had a great collection, the canal tolls reveal bill furnishing a large number. Then the criticisms of extravagance are many, as the platform promised economy. Among the critics whose words are quoted are Secretary Bryan, Speaker Clark, Senators Reed, Vardaman, Williams, Thomas, O'Gorman, Hitchcock, Ransdell, Thornton, Martine and others, while Representatives Fitzgerald, Murray, Sisson, Saunders, Cox, Callaway, Dies, O'Shaughnessy and Underwood, as well as many others, are mentioned and their remarks quoted. Nearly all of these men were opposed to some features of different bills that were put through as Democratic legislation.

Not a Popular Suggestion.

That was not a popular suggestion by Senator Vardaman of Mississippi when he proposed a measure looking to the reduction or withholding of a certain percentage of all salaries above $2,000 which were paid to government officials. It was a graduated proposition taking 10 per cent on all salaries of $7,500 and upward. Now, a congressman's salary is $7,500, and it can be readily surmised that any suggestion of this kind to meet the treasury deficit will never pass congress.

Would Run Amuck.

Congressman Humphrey of Washington was rather disappointed because he was not allowed to go home and look after his election interests. Coming out of the house one day, he remarked: "I feel just like going in there and raising a row. I believe I'll do it too." And a little later some one reported that "Bill Humphrey of Washington was running amuck again." It is not unusual for Humphrey to start something in the house. He is an intense partisan, and there is nothing Democratic that he will not attack.

Mann Had the Figures.

Minority Leader Mann was twitting Congressman Henry of Texas about being absent. Henry said he had not been docked and did not intend to lose any of his salary.

"Do you know how many of the 217 roll calls you have answered during the session up to the last of August?" asked Mann.

"Do you know?" asked Henry in reply.

"Yes," responded Mann; "you have answered 102 and been absent 115."

Henry frankly acknowledged that he had been absent several weeks looking after his re-election.

His Tender Point.

Keenly disappointed because the senate had rejected his conference report on the Alaska coal leasing bill, Senator Myers of Montana was rather severely critical upon the Democracy of those senators who voted against him.

"You must not question my Democracy," shouted the New Jerseyman. "I claim to be as good a Democrat as any in this body or any man who ever sat here. This is not a party question, but I will not sacrifice my honest convictions for any party."

Peculiar Conditions.

"Congress is getting to be a peculiar body," Senator Borah told the senate one day. "Those things which belong to administrative bodies and bureaus are being taken over by congress, while those things which belong particularly to congress are being delegated to bureaus and administrative offices."

WAS A NOTED MATHEMATICIAN

Michael A. McGinnis Wrote a Book on Algebra While in Prison.

Michael Angelo McGinnis, a mathematician of international fame, who died in a Kansas City (Mo.) hospital, wrote a book on algebra, called "Algebra, the Universal Solution For Numerical and Literal Equations," while confined in a Missouri penitentiary. It was published in this country and attracted the attention of mathematicians and educators all over the world. He was a descendent of John M. Napier, the inventor of logarithms, who died in 1617.

For some time McGinnis was professor of mathematics at Wichita, Kan., and later at a college in Missouri. Not long after this he was sent to the penitentiary for forging a deed and in August, 1910, applied to the governor of the state for a pardon, claiming that he had worked out a number of mathematical problems that had been universally despised of. Among these he said that he had found the exact ratio of the diameter of a circle to its radius, that he had found the exact root of all numbers and that he could reduce equations of the tenth degree.

PREDICTS RUSH TO AMERICA.

Thousands Will Leave Countries Where War Is Constant Menace.

Professor Jeremiah Jenks, lecturing at New York university on the European war, declared that the conflict would undoubtedly force the United States to make changes in its immigration laws to prevent this country from being flooded with Europeans after peace has come.

He said he had just come from a conference on this subject and that it had there been averred by one who has been in Europe since the war started that on every side men were saying that they would have no more governments which at any time might plunge them into war. "When this war is over I will go to America," was the statement of thousands of middle class and laboring men.

COMPASSION.

A tender hearted and compassionate disposition, which inclines men to pity and feel the misfortunes of others and which is even for its own sake incapable of involving any man in ruin and misery, is of all tempers of mind the most amiable and, though it seldom receives much honor, is worthy of the highest.—Fielding.

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

OPEN TIME FOR CANDIDATES

Some Criticise Administration, While Others Uphold Every Act of Democrats—Vardaman's Suggestion That Salaries of Government Employees Be Held Up Is Not a Popular One.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

AN OSTRICH STOMACH

Bryan Swallows Tammany and Hammond Although Followers Cannot Account for it

Many of the original Bryan men in Minnesota cannot understand how William J. Bryan can bring himself to speak for W. S. Hammond.

"It seems that Bryan has to be regular now in spite of his feelings," said one of the Bryanites, "and, after endorsing the Tammany candidate in New York, he is forced to come to Minnesota and speak for our Minnesota Tammany," says the Minneapolis Journal.

No one expects Mr. Bryan to mention county option in his Minneapolis speech though that is the issue of the Joe-Hammond campaign. In 1910 Bryan bolted Dalmann, the democratic candidate for governor of Nebraska, because Dalmann was against county option and was supported by the liquor interests. Many times since then Bryan has spoken for county option, but he cannot do it in Minnesota without hurting the candidate of his party.

The Bryanites, already referred to, recalled the attack made by Bryan on Hammond, at the big banquet of Minnesota democrats, June 1, 1911, at the St. Paul auditorium. It was a spectacular occasion, and one where Mr. Hammond did not appear to the best advantage. Mr. Bryan had been attacking the democratic majority in the house, and the ways and means committee especially for placing a duty on raw wool in the tariff bill they had framed.

Mr. Hammond as a member of the ways and means committee defended its action in an interview when he arrived in St. Paul for the dinner. He said it was necessary as a revenue proposition to have some duty on raw wool.

Mr. Bryan arrived the same day and denounced the committee action in interviews. That evening was the dinner and the two men sat near each other at the speaker's table. Hammond spoke first and tried to evade discussion of the tariff matter, ignoring it in his speech and making a plea for democratic harmony.

"Talk about harmony," retorted Bryan in his speech, after he had roasted democratic "reactionaries" with Schedule "K", "you cannot have harmony under that kind of leadership, unless you betray party principles."

Bryan denounced the wool schedule as "the worst in the tariff law," and said that few farmers get any benefit from the duty on raw wool, though it places an enormous burden on the public.

The speech, was made directly at Hammond, who was very quiet and seemingly sullen afterward under his castigation. Few sought him after the banquet, while Bryan was the center of attraction and many congratulated him on his speech.

Just a Bit Cautious.

"Shall we have a tete-a-tete, dear?" "If it doesn't cost too much, William." —Baltimore American.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Sporting Offer.

Some two hours later, that same evening, Mr. Alan Law, very much alive and, in spite of a complete new outfit of ready-made clothing, looking much more like himself than he had in a fortnight, issued forth from the Grand Central station, hailed a taxicab, and had himself conveyed to the Hotel Monolith.

But if he looked his proper self once more, it speedily was demonstrated that his wish was otherwise: for after learning from the room-clerk of the Monolith that a suite was being held in the name of Arthur Lawrence, that was the name Mr. Law inscribed on the register.

On the other hand, it was his true name that he gave to the person whom he called upon the telephone immediately after being shown to his rooms. But then he was speaking to his old friend and man of business, Mr. Digby.

Within another ten minutes this last was in conference with his employer: "I think you must be out of your head," he insisted nervously, once their first greetings were over. "You might just as sensibly throw yourself from the top of the Metropolitan tower as come to New York while Trine lives and knows you're this side the water."

"Nonsense!" Alan laughed. "Remember this is New York—not the backwoods of Maine!"

Alan paused and smote his palm with a remorseful fist. "By the Eternal, I'm forgetting Barcus!"

"Barcus?"

"Chap whose boat I chartered in Portland—sheer luck on my part: he's one of the salt of the earth. First, something must be done for the boy. You've got influence of some sort in New Bedford, surely?"

Digby reflected: "Some. There's George Blaine, justice of the peace."

"The very man. Telegraph him in Barcus' interests immediately. And telegraph Barcus as well—send him a hundred for expenses, and tell him to join me here in New York as quick as he can!"

"Your friend's address?" Digby inquired, mildly ironic as he sat down at the desk and fumbled with the supply of stationery.

"New Bedford jail, of course!" Alan chuckled—but cut his laugh in two as something fluttered from the pack of envelopes which Digby had disturbed and fell to the floor between the two men.

Face up, it grinned sardonic mockery of Alan's confidence: it was a Trey of hearts.

With an ashen face and a trembling hand, Digby stooped to pick the damned thing up; but Alan was before him and had got his fingers first upon the card.

"Now will you believe?" Digby demanded huskily.

"In what? A simple coincidence?" Alan flouted. "Not I! Who knows I'm in New York—or that the Arthur Law-
